Carter Gives Nod To Neutron Bomb

WASHINGTON (UPI)— President Carter told Congress today he supports production of the neutron bomb that kills people by atomic radiation without the heat and blast that destroys property.

The announcement foreshadowed a debate in Congress over funds for the new warheads, now buried in the 1978 public works appropriations bill. Today's Washington Post said the amount was classified, but could reach $650 million.

"The President will send a direct appeal to Congress," said White House Press Secretary Jody Powell.

He added that the President reserved the right to change his mind.

Carter spoke with the congressional leadership early today.

Speaker Thomas O'Neill said, "the President indicated again that he had no knowledge it was before the Congress" until news reports said the research funds were in the public works appropriation bill.

"He said he would like it passed so he could study the issue at greater length," said O'Neill.

Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd predicted that Carter's endorsement would help supporters win approval for the weapon. "I hope that it will clear the air, shorten the debate," he said.

Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., leading the fight against funds for production of the bomb, claimed new information that it is not "clean" as touted by its supporters.

Hatfield said several scientists — whom he did not identify—told him a neutron explosion splits a radioactive carbon atom, and as a result, the neutron bomb leaves a "deadly radioactive cloud."

But House GOP leader John Rhodes said the neutron warhead, to be used on the Lance surface-to-surface missile and artillery shells, is "a creditable deterrent against aggressive attack in . . . Europe."

POWER CURB ASKED ON HOME APPLIANCES

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. government is asking makers of 10 power-hungry home appliances to voluntarily reduce the energy consumption of the products by as much as three-fourths by 1980.

The most dramatic reduction proposed Monday by the Federal Energy Administration — 79 per cent — is for television sets. Other appliances range from refrigerators to ovens.

The government wants the efficiency of clothes dryers improved by 11 per cent, the lowest efficiency improvement target of the affected appliances.

An FEA spokesman says additional targets will be set later for furnaces; central air conditioners, humidifiers and dehumidifiers.

Administration officials consider voluntary targets; required under the 1975 Energy Policy and Conservation Act, to be a temporary measure pending passage of President Carter's request for mandatory standards for the most energy-hungry appliances.

The FEA, the National Bureau of Standards and industry officials worked together to produce the voluntary targets, described as the best performance considered technologically and economically possible.

Hijackers Sleep Then Surrender

HELSINKI (AP) — Two Soviet skyjackers surrendered to Finnish authorities early today, ending the second hijacking of a Soviet airliner to Scandinavia in 6½ weeks. Finnish officials said the pair will be turned over to the Soviet Union as soon as possible.

The pair surrendered after their remaining hostages fled the plane. The escape came when the hijackers fell asleep.

Authorities identified them as Alexander Zabirnjak, 19, and Gennady Seluzhkd, 22. They commandeered a twin-jet Aeroflot Tupolev 134 Sunday night on a flight over northern Russia between Petrozavodsk and Leningrad.

Interior Minister Eino Uusitalo told an air port news conference Finland has received an extradition request from the Soviet government.

Finnish officials said the men will be returned to the Soviet Union in accordance with a 1974 anti-hijacking treaty between the two countries. The Soviet Union is the only nation having such a treaty with Finland.

In the Soviet Union they face prison terms of three to 15 years.

An official Finnish communique said the first hijacker gave himself up three hours after the last three hostages managed to escape from the plane early today. He was followed within one-half hour by the other hijacker, it said.

Officials said the hijackers had been armed with one hand grenade that preliminary investigation indicated contained no explosives. During negotiations the two said they were armed with several hand grenades, the communique said.

There was no word on other possible weapons. Earlier an airport spokesman said no weapons were carried by the hijackers when they walked out of the plane and surrendered, about 36 hours after seizing the jetliner.

Hoax Brings Call Flood To Spicer

OTTAWA (CP) — The office of Keith Spicer, commissioner of official languages, has been inundated by telephone calls seeking information about a hoax advertisement in a New York newspaper Sunday.

The ad in the New York Times sought applicants for a "two-year French course in Quebec, Canada" to train teachers for "a 10-year make-America-French program."

Students enrolled in the course would be paid $15,000 a year and $24,000 and up once they began teaching French to Americans.

The ads said 400-500 teachers were needed for the program and invited applicants to apply to Spicer's office in Ottawa.

"We are inundated by calls from people wanting to apply," said an official in Spicer's office.

"When we tell them it's a hoax, a lot of them are saying 'I thought it was too good to be true'."

The official said the Canadian embassy in Washington has notified government missions in 15 American cities to check if the ads had appeared there.

Spicer's office received a list of ad rates from the Washington Post and an Organization called the Hawaii News Agency.

Liddy Given Parole Sept. 7

WASHINGTON (AP) — Watergate mastermind G. Gordon Liddy, who stuck to his code of silence through more than four years in prison, was granted a parole today to take effect Sept. 7.

The early release of the man who sought political dirt on the Democrats in the 1972 United States election was made possible through the intervention of a Democratic president, Jimmy Carter, who cut Liddy's 20-year sentence to eight years.

Jobless Lineups Lengthen in B.C.

Wage, Job Ties a Myth

OTTAWA (CP) — The Economic Council of Canada released a study today that says there is no evidence to support the commonly held notion that wage increases can be held down by allowing unemployment rates to rise.

Governments have been ill-advised to assume there is a simple trade-off between unemployment and inflation, the study says. This theory generally holds that stimulating economic activity accelerates inflation, and conversely that stable prices take a cost in higher unemployment.

This idea has come under pressure in recent years, the study notes, because both the number of jobless and the inflation rate have been rising together.

The authors, J. C. R. Rowley and D. A. Wilton, find that the role of unemployment in determining wage rises has been distorted in previous research.

Too often, studies have assumed that wage rates are negotiated annually, whereas in fact unions and management often prefer to lock in pay increments over a period of years, frequently including high initial increases, they report.

OTTAWA (CP) — British Columbia's unemployment rate rose by one-half of one per cent in June to 8.3 per cent, Statistics Canada reported today.

There were 93,000 workers without jobs in B.C. last month, compared to 89,000 in May.

In Victoria the unemployment rate in June rose to 8.6 per cent from 8.2 per cent.

The unemployment level in Vancouver rose to 7.3 per cent from 6.4 per cent.

Statistics Canada said the actual unemployment rate for the country as a whole was 7.5 per cent last month, compared to 6.6 per cent in June, 1976, and 7.7 per cent in May.

The number of unemployed in the country dropped in June, for the second consecutive month, to a total of 814,000.

The seasonally adjusted jobless rate was eight per cent in June, up from 7.9 per cent in May.

B.C., New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Newfoundland — with 15.7 per cent out of work — had significantly higher unemployment rates among the provinces.

Statistics Canada included in its survey student unemployment figures. For students planning to return to school in the fall, the jobless rate was 14 per cent.

Worst hit are students who do not plan to return and who are entering the work force. Their rate is 17.3 per cent.

Later, Finance Minister Donald Macdonald said he was concerned at the latest job figures.

The downward trend in the unemployment rate that the government had hoped for after May had not continued, he said, and the government will have to take a hard look at the economy after the House of Commons rises later this month.

In Toronto Robert Andras, treasury board president, said today that the federal government will spend public funds to create jobs if the private sector does not do so through expansions.

"I remain convinced that the best way to create jobs is through the private sector, but if there is no response then it is pretty difficult for government to stand aloof," Andras told the advisory council of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

Andras said response from business to government urging for expansion have not been satisfactory.

Andras related the unemployment problem to the issue of national unity.

"Sustained, chronic high unemployment is very hard and a danger to social stability," he said.

"The next 12 to 18 months could be pretty dicey, particularly on the unemployment side, which unquestionably exacerbates our critical unity problem.

Ottawa Policeman Killed In Bloody Gun Battle

Times News Services

Frederick Koepke was ordered to undergo a psychiatric examination before appearing in court for arraignment.

Police said today that Constable David Kirkwood, 22, was fatally shot as he approached a residence at Bronson and Gladstone Avenues to deliver a summons for assault.

Constable Terry Lynch was with Kirkwood. He was not injured. Eight other policemen and a civilian were wounded in a three-hour siege and gun battle watched by hundreds of spectators.

Kirkwood is believed to have died from the blast of a 12-guage shotgun which hit him in the throat and chest. It was fired through the door of the house.

Inspector Lester Thompson, in charge of the criminal investigation division, denied reports that some people in the crowd taunted police as they lobbed tear gas into the house.

He told a news conference this morning that there were scattered cheers when the tear gas canisters were fired.

Police said they seized five firearms in the house, including a 12-guage pump action shotgun and a .22-calibre rifle. Police said both weapons were used during the shootout.

Also seized were other heavier calibre rifles, police said.

Justice Minister Ron Basford, on his way home from Parliament Hill a few blocks away, witnessed part of the drama.

"Now you see what I mean about gun-control legislation," said the minister who has been attempting to get tougher gun-control laws through Parliament.

Controls Countdown Discussed

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Donald Macdonald said today that he and two cabinet colleagues will meet during the next four days with provincial governments in a final set of talks about ending wage and price controls.

A decision about the method and date to start lifting controls will be announced during the last week of July or the first week of August, he said.

Macdonald said he is meeting this week with representatives of the Ontario, Alberta and British Columbia governments. Robert Andras, treasury board president, will meet the Manitoba and Saskatchewan governments, and Allan MacEachen, privy council president will meet the Atlantic provinces.

They will be talking about a monitoring agency for the period after mandatory controls end, a consultative group to represent all interest groups, and public service compensation, he indicated.

The government wants to assure that pay rates for public servants do not become targets for other groups after controls end.

ICBC Plea Defended by Kerster

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

Socred George Kerster (Coquitlam) said Monday he was only doing his job as an MLA when he intervened to have several claims paid last year by the Insurance Corp of B.C. after they had earlier been denied.

One of the claims involved a personal friend and another involved Kerster's former car dealership, Surrey Dodge.

In another dispute in the legislature Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver East) said Monday that three Social Credit MLAs, two of them cabinet ministers, are no longer eligible to sit in the house because they took government expense money. See story on Page 32.

Education Minister Pat McGeer, minister in charge of the government-owned corporation, agreed that Kerster acted properly, and denied all allegations of political interference.

The situation came to light through a Vancouver newspaper story which detailed two separate sets of cases in which Kerster was involved.

The first involved three claims made by Leslie Wood a constituent of Kerster's. They were originally denied by ICBC because there was a suspicion of fraud.

After a visit by Kerster to the office of ICBC general manager Norman Bortnick, the claims were paid out. The company which financed the car involved in the claims and which held a lein on it, was First Charter Financial Corp. of New Westminister, headed by manager Bill Butler, described by Kerster as a personal friend.

The second claim involved a claim by Surrey Dodge which was also paid after Kerster's visit to Bortnick. Kerster was president of the company in June, 1975, at the time of the theft of a dealership car, but was not connected with it when the claim was filed in March, 1976.

The claim was apparently not filed until almost eight months after the incident because of a strike by ICBC employees.

Kerster, after being informed of lengthy delays in both cases, on Aug. 23, 1976 went to see Bortnick.

Socreds Grab Committee

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

The Social Credit government today ensured tighter control over the legislature's public accounts committee' afte a 90-minute meeting that featured insults, name calling and snarling debate.

The Social Credit majority on the committee passed a motion making it necessary for the committee to vote on and approve the agenda of witnesses to be called before it.

The public accounts committee, set up to examine government spending, is the only legislative committee with an opposition chairman, giving the opposition the right to call witnesses and set the agenda without the approval of the government majority.

Opposition members termed the Socred move a "mockery and farce," and accused the government of deliberately emasculating the committee to avoid embarrassment.

Liberal Leader Gordon Gibson said the motion gives the government complete control of the agenda.

"This frustrates the entire purpose of having an opposition chairman," he said.

"The government can postpone the calling of witnesses to a time of their own convenience or to no time at all."

Gibson stormed out of the meeting as soon as the Socred motion was passed.

Witnesses, usually the heads of Crown corporations or government controlled agencies, were called by the chairman at the request of any committee member. There are 11 Socred MLAs on the committee, four NDPers, Gibson and Tory leader Scott Wallace.

Bill King (NDP — Revelstoke Slocan) said the effect of the motion is to make ineffective, opposition chairman Dave Stupich (NDP — Nanaimo).

"I just wish they'd be honest enough to put forward a motion removing the opposition chairman because that's the effect of it," he said.

"They've just done it through the back door."

At one point in the meeting, Socred George Kerster (Coquitlam) accused Stupich of using a "jack-boot approach as to who the blazes is going to appear before this committee."

"You're not Chairman Mao you know," Kerster shouted at Stupich.

King asked Kerster to withdraw the remarks. He refused.

Stupich said that "considering the source" of the remark he wasn't bothered about it.

Kerster then asked Stupich to withdraw his remark. Stupich refused.

"Well, that's accomplished absolutely nothing. We're dead even," Kerster said.

King said the government was going back in history in taking control of the committee away from the opposition.

The NDP government started the custom of having an opposition chairman.

The committee also voted to destroy the Hansard recording and minutes of a public accounts committee meeting June 28 which the Socreds say did not occur.

"If you have any trouble obliterating the record, why don't you contact Richard Nixon," King suggested.

RECORD LINE-UP FOR MAUI RACE

A record number of more than 40 boats is expected to take part in the biennial Victoria-Maui sailing classic, due to start near Brotchie Ledge 11 a.m. July 1, 1978.

Race committee chairman Tom Orr of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club, co-sponsors of the race with the Lahaina Yacht Club, reports, "We have inquiries from clubs all along the west coast and it looks like we will have a considerably bigger fleet than in 1976."

There were 33 boats in the 1976 race, four of which withdrew in rough weather.

The 2,308-mile race was first started in 1966. There are two categories — International Offshore Rule and the Pacific Handicap Racing Fleet.

ICBC Plea Defended

Kerster said Monday he sat in Bortnick's office for six and a half hours that day and discussed various cases with the general manager, including the Wood and Surrey Dodge cases.

Several months after the meeting, and in connection with the payment of a legal account involving the Wood case, ICBC legal counsel S. H. Winfield sent a memo to the Surrey claims centre:

The memo read:

"This was forwarded to you for payment on July 9, 1976. As you know, we were instructed on Aug. 24, 1976, that a certain member of the legislative asembly intervened directly with Mr. Bortnick and we were instructed to close the file and not persue the judgment. Please pay this account forthwith."

Asked about Winfield's use of the word "intervene," Kerster said: "That's his word. He calls it intervention, I call it doing a job for my constituents."

Kerster said that although Butler, of the finance company, is a personal friend, it had nothing to do with his participation in the Wood case.

"I consider him a friend," Kerster said of Butler. "But I also consider my barber a friend and even the press, at times," he added.

He said he got into the case because he was angry at the lengthy delays involved.

He got involved in the Surrey Dodge case, he said, on behalf of a constituent, not because he used to be president of the company.

"I call it working for a constituent who was being treated arrogantly by the corporation, which I might add is not unusual."

Kerster has been a strong critic of the corporation since he was elected in December, 1975.

He suggested that some ICBC employees were becoming "tired" of his criticism, "because sometimes it strikes home, sometimes it's dead on."

"I don't care how snarky they get, as long as I'm doing my job."

McGeer said Monday ICBC carried on an internal investigation into the Kerster involvement in the two cases and turned up no evidence of political interference.

McGeer said Winfield's memo, containing the first allegation of political interference was based on hearsay, not on any hard evidence.

He said Winfield made an "error in judgment, but you don't dismiss someone because of an error in judgment."

"I categorically reject any allegation of meddling," he said in the legislature.

"That memo was incorrectly written by the legal department, without evidence."

McGeer said Kerster intervened because the corporation was sitting on" settlement of the claims.

The internal investigation showed, he said, that if the ICBC continued to deny the Wood claim, it would probably have been taken to court by the finance company and the finance company would likely have won.

"The outcome had nothing to do with the fact that an MLA was involved, it had everything to do with the fact that the corporation could not win in court," McGeer said.

The investigation also showed that Kerster had no influence on the settlement of the Surrey Dodge case. The claim had never been formally denied, the investigation showed, but was delayed because of the delay in the reporting of the claim.

"There is a firm rule for the corporation that no political influence can be brought to bear," McGeer said.

"There is absolutely no truth to the allegation of political influence here."

the economy, as well as on the emotional, cultural and constitutional concerns, we may be embarked during that period upon saving a nation."

Jobless rates in five provinces declined. Prince Edward Island showed a nine-tenths-of-one-per-cent decline to 9.7 per cent; Saskatchewan had a similar drop to 4.8 per cent and Quebec's unemployment rate fell by three-tenths of one per cent to 9.7 per cent.

In Alberta and Ontario, the jobless rate fell by one-tenth of one per cent to 4.1 per cent and 7.2 per cent respectively.

Manitoba's rate remained steady at 6.1 per cent.

The decline in the number of unemployed during June was much smaller than the change bteween April and May, when the jobless total fell by 90,000.

In the last 10 months, unemployment rates have run at levels significantly higher than a year earlier. June's rate, for example, compares with seven per cent in June of 1976 and 1975 and five per cent in June, 1974.

Alaska Fires Ferry Men

JUNEAU (AP) — The state has fired 15 members of the Inland Boatmen's Union who walked off their jobs aboard the ferry Malaspina here over the weekend, a spokesman said Monday.

The crew members were fired for refusing to honor a written agreement between the state and union not to begin a strike against the ferry system until their vessels docked at final destination points, the spokesman said.

The Malaspina was bound for Haines from Seattle with about 350 passengers, mostly tourists, aboard when the IBU members walked off the ship after it docked in the Alaska capital Friday.

A Saturday court order forced the men back to work, and the Malaspina docked in Haines Sunday, completing the shutdown of the state's eight-ferry fleet.

The IBU called a strike beginning last Wednesday after deadlocking with the state over terms of a new contract.

Meanwhile, negotiations continued between the state and IBU over a refusal of union workers to man the ferry Tustumena on a voyage without passengers from Seward to Cordova, the scheduled tie-up port in the pre-strike agreement.

Like the Malaspina crew members, IBU members aboard the Tustumena objected to not being reimbursed for returning to their homes after docking for the strike.

The union had no immediate comment on the firing of the 15 Malaspina crew members.

TRIDENT PICKETS ARRESTED

BANGOR, Wash. (AP) — Three persons have been charged with trespassing on U.S. property after traffic was blocked early Monday morning at a gate of the Trident nuclear submarine base under construction.

Ada H. Keith, 25, and Marita A. Haberland, 26, both of Yakima, Wash. and Shyamah Tann, 37, of British Columbia, were scheduled to appear Friday before Magistrate John Weinberg.

A Trident spokesman said demonstrators were holding a sign reading: "The world's poor beg for peace."

Twenty-nine anti-nuclear demonstrators arrested at Bangor July 4 for trespassing were released after a preliminary hearing in Tacoma, Wash.

Laetrile Useless For Cancer — Study

WASHINGTON (WP) — A fresh study of Laetrile's effect on the two types of malignant human tumors has shown the derivative of ground-up apricot pits to be a useless treatment of cancer.

The tests were done under the auspices of the U.S. National Cancer Institute at the Battelle Memorial Institute in Columbus, Ohio.

In them, Laetrile, used to treat human breast and colon tumors induced in colonies of mice, proved to be completely worthless in arresting the growth of either type of tumor.

"There was no effect of the Laetrile whatsoever," said Dr. David P. Houchens, who is co-director of a three-year study of anti-cancer drugs on mice being done at Battelle. "The tumors induced in the mice and treated with the Laetrile just kept growing, no worse and no better than if they'd been left alone."

The mice used were hairless mutants chosen for the Laetrile studies because they have no power to fight infections. The reason is that their immunology systems don't work, which means they don't recognize implanted human tumors as coming from another species.

"This means human tumors will flourish and grow in nude mice," Houchens said. "All other laboratory animals reject human cancers as a foreign species."

Battelle scientists tested two different doses of Laetrile on breast and colon tumors implanted in colonies of four to six mice.

One dose involved injecting Laetrile alone, the second dose was of Laetrile and beta glucasidase, an enzyme identified as the active agent in Laetrile that triggers the release of cyanide from the Laetrile molecule. Laetrile's proponents contend that cyanide release from the drug selectively kills cancer cells.

Houchens and his co-investigator, Dr. Artemio Ovejera, said that the Laetrile injections proved worthless to the mice. The Laetrile plus the enzyme was toxic, meaning it did more harm to the mice than if they were injected with nothing.

Saccharin Ban Vote Postponed

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The House of Representatives health subcommittee voted Monday to postpone a proposed ban on the artifical sweetener saccharin for at least 18 months.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) began action in March to ban the use of saccharin as a food additive, because a Canadian study said the sweetener caused bladder cancer in rats. Saccharin is widely used in diet soft drinks.

The Senate health subcommittee has passed a similar bill delaying the introduction of a saccharin ban for at least 18 months.

But unlike the Senate's bill, the one passed by the House subcommittee does not contain provisions barring radio and television advertising of products containing saccharin and requiring a warning label on all such products.

The subcommittee vote was 8-3. Further action on both bills will have to be taken by higher committees and the full House and Senate.

Thousands in Uproar Over Small U.K. Firm

Times News Services

LONDON—Seventy pickets were arrested and 30 people taken to hospital Monday as 18,000 workers mounted a Day of Solidarity over a North London factory dispute.

The clash at the small Grunnick factory here involves no great new issue of industrial relations, nor does it raise any important economic questions. The number of strikers is only 137. But both the militant left and the hard right have seized on the 11-month old dispute to turn it into a test of strength.

As a result, the affair has captured press and television coverage to an extraordinary degree and forced itself on the attention of Prime Minister James Callaghan's cabinet.

About 4,000 police, nearly a quarter of the London force, faced 15,000 demonstrators, including coal miners, outside the plant gates Monday. The demonstrators were 40 times the number of Grunnick workers involved—429 inside and outside the plant.

The two sides clashed. By Monday night the police counted 18 injured in their own ranks, 12 among the demonstrators hurt and 70 persons arrested. None of the injuries were said to be serious, although six policemen were kept overnight in a hospital for observation.

The center of all this fury is a successful, small mail-order business that develops snapshot film and is owned by George Ward, 44. A strident union foe, Ward is an accountat of mixed Indian and British parentage, and experts think this is a central factor in the dispute.

His workers are largely immigrant Indian women, many from the state of Gujerat, and generally among the most vulnerable workers here. Anglo-Indians like Ward are frequently contemptuous of full-blooded Indians, and his striking workers have complained that he treated them inhumanely.

Last August Ward fired one worker, four more followed him out and soon 137 had joined the strike. No clear picture of wage levels at Grunnick has ever been given. But those outside the plant say that starting pay was about $48 for a 40-hour week.

The strikers sought the help of a union and turned to one of the mildest in Britain, the Association of Professional, Executive, Clerical and Computer Staff or APEX.

Ward refused to recognize or bargain with APEX, fired the strikers and asserted that those who had stayed on to work in the plant wanted no part of a union. The affair then was a little-noticed local squabble in North London.

It was transformed, however, when postal workers refused to deliver Grunnick's mail, a potentially deadly blow to a company that does mor than $3 million a year through the mail.

Ward turned to a new right-wing organization, the National Association for Freedom. It won a court order compelling the mailmen to end their blacklist of Grunnick. The order has been obeyed only in part, however, and the company still receives less than its normal mail supply.

Nuclear Shipments Reviewed

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian and Geman leaders discussed Monday the possibility of an interim resumption of nuclear shipments to Germany while awaiting the solution of safeguard problems, Canadian officials said.

They said Prime Minister Trudeau and Wester German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt discussed a number of ways under which uranium shipments, suspended since Jan. 1, might be resumed.

An official of the prime minister's office, briefing reporters after the second round of formal taks between Trudeau and the visiting chancellor, said talks were designed to improve the understanding of each other's nuclear position.

The subject of nuclear shipments was one of the major topics raised by Trudeau and Schmidt in almost two hours of talks following the chancellor's arrival from Duluth, Minn., where he had visited a cousin.

The leaders also talked of NATO, the world economy, and domestic economic considerations such as inflation and unemployment.

But the main attention was focused on finding ways under which Canada can reach a nuclear safeguards agreement with Euratom, the nuclear agency of the European Economic Community EEC, so it can resume uranium sales to Europe, primarily to West Germany and Britain.

Canada suspended sales because of lack of agreement on a number of issues with EEC.

Salmon Harvest Stops for Count

SEATTLE (AP) — The Fraser River salmon harvest will remain closed today while an international commission considers escapement figures, Richard Thompson, a U.S. National Marine Fisheries Service management biologist, said Monday.

The International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission, a U.S.-Canada treaty administering body, decided to continue the closure of convention waters in a telephone conference on Monday, Thompson said.

The commission initially decided to close treaty waters — basically the area in Puget Sound around the San Juan Islands and north across the international boundary —during a meeting in Bellingham, Wash., last week.

The commission believes 400,000 fish must make it into spawning grounds for adequate reproduction of the run.

As of Monday, an estimated 246,000 early Stuart fish had been counted for escapement, said Thompson. The Stuart run, this year 30 times the size of runs of four or five generations ago, has passed its peak.

So far, American fishermen have caught 573,000 sockeye from the run, and about 120,000 fish of that total have gone to Indians of eight treaty tribes. Non-treaty fishermen have been permitted to fish four days, and Indians 8½ days.

Canadian fishermen harvested about 357,000 fish, said Thompson, though by international treaty they are entitled to half the run.

Normally, Mondays and Tuesdays are fishing days in convention waters. The commission can order closures or emergency openings as necessary.

INTRODUCING EUROPE'S MOST SUCCESSFUL NEW CAR IN HISTORY.

Fiesta with Decor Option Group.

INTRODUCING FIESTA. IMPORTED FROM GERMANY BY FORD.

The triumph of the new Fiesta in Europe since its introduction in Sept. 1976 is that it has surpassed even the most popular cars from VW, Renault and Fiat. Ford Fiesta, based on a comparison of sales in the first six months, outsold every new car nameplate ever introduced in Europe. Behind that remarkable success is a high level of performing excellence. The Fiesta is now available for the first time in Canada.

A CAR FOR CANADA

Fiesta's built in Germany and designed to handle tough European conditions such as the snows of the Alps and the cold of Scandinavia. With this kind of heritage, Canadian driving conditions will be nothing new for Fiesta.

FRONT WHEEL DRIVE TRACTION

Fiesta has the power and control of front wheel drive for superb traction–a fact you will quickly appreciate in conditions of snow, ice or mud. This, in addition to MacPherson Strut front suspension and Michelin X radial tires, gives the Fiesta a solid feeling of controlled action in the city or on the highway.

QUICK AND MANEUVERABLE

Fiesta was designed to respond quickly on high speed Autobahns. In Ford tests, Fiesta's 1.6 litre engine took it from 0-50 MPH in 8.8 seconds. And its front disc brakes brought Fiesta confidently from 50-0 MPH in 3.3 seconds. Excellent control in tight corners and sudden traffic maneuvers is provided by Fiesta's precise rack and pinion steering and fully synchronized 4-speed gear box. One test drive will show you how responsive and maneuverable this car really is.

SIMPLE, EASY SERVICING

Fiesta was engineered to be simple and easy to service. Owners will appreciate its highly accessible transverse mounted engine and see-through containers that allow "sight check" of battery, radiator, brakes and windshield-washer fluid levels. Professional service is readily available at more than 500 Ford and Mercury dealers conveniently located from coast to coast in Canada. That's substantially more than Volkswagen, Renault, Fiat or Honda offer.

A SURPRISE INSIDE

With Fiesta there's a surprising amount of back seat room. Its unique 4-passenger design provides more back seat leg room than any imported or domestic car of its kind (sub-compacts under 100 inch wheel base). Fiesta has excellent luggage space in front of its rear hatch door. The door opens conveniently from floor to roof. The back seat also folds down to create additional load space. There's a hidden storage compartment beneath the rear load floor, for cameras and other valuables.

Fiesta with Ghia Option Group

CORROSION PROTECTION

Resistance to corrosion was designed into Fiesta. It has its own particular corrosion protection program, and uses many of the same anti-corrosion processes that are built into Ford's North American cars...like vinyl sealer, wax spray, and a protective layer of vinyl under the paint along the lower bodyside for resistance to stone chipping and road abrasion. Fiesta also has an electro-coat paint primer process similar to the system used on most of Ford's North American-built cars.

Fiesta is backed by a no-charge 36-month unlimited mileage warranty against rust perforation. Your dealer has full details.

Checks and Balances

The controversy raised by opposition members of the legislature concerning whether or not three Social Credit MLAs illegally received government funds for work they did on the so-called housing task force may seem to some people to be a small and unimportant matter.

The establishment of the committee by Housing Minister Hugh Curtis last year, consisting of three MLAs — all Socred — and several municipal politicians and officials, was certainly not "one of the grossest misappropriations of power" that one opposition MLA claimed it was last week.

Though the government's intentions were certainly honorable — to find out where the cause of delays in building housing lay — the methods by which it went about looking for the answers were highly irregular, to say the least.

Three Socred backbenchers were named to the committee, one as chairman — Sam Bawlf, now the recreation minister. The others were George Kerster and Jim Hewitt. There was no representation from the opposition benches, although it's clear that many people were under the impression that this was a legislative committee.

Hansard staff from the legislature were taken along to tape record the deliberations of the committee, which often met in secret. But still no transcripts of the hearings have been made public, and as of Monday Curtis was still rather reticent about bringing them into the light.

Bills for expenses by the committee and by individual members were forwarded to the government. Bawlf said last week he didn't tender any expense vouchers and in fact is out of pocket several hundred dollars of his own money. But that apparently contradicts documents Curtis tabled in the legislature on Monday, which state that the MLAs on the committee did submit claims for expenses totalling $1,881.82 for the three of them.

The MLAs worked hard, it is said by the minister. No one disputes that, or suggests that the three men tried to get money from the government illicitly. But as opposition leader Dave Barrett noted in Friday's debate in the legislature: "There is a form, there is a method and there are laws in this country governing the expenditure, the handling and the use of taxpayer's money."

The law is quite clear. No MLA may receive any monies from the government except in connection with his duties as an MLA. It is a good law, designed to prevent members of the government from rifling the public till.

It is really not very difficult to understand: if the housing task force was not a commission of inquiry or royal commission as legally defined, then the MLAs were not entitled to receive monies as expenses or in other forms. If they did receive government monies, then they stand in contravention of the Constitution Act which states (for very good reasons) that an MLA may not hold any contracts with the government or its agencies, or receive any salaries from the government other than for his legislative work. They are disqualified from sitting as MLAs if they are guilty of either.

The government wanted to move quickly, and in this case its motives were entirely pure. But it made a mistake in not going through the channels for establishing such inquiries. It put three Socred MLAs on the committee and then billed the government for their expenses — illegally, it now seems.

The parliamentary system may seem to go-getter newcomers, as the Socreds were early last year, to be excessively unwieldy and slow. But its procedures were established over centuries, with numerous checks and balances to call those in authority to account over arbitrary and unjust actions. The provincial government must not with impunity disregard these safeguards and bull ahead without respect for the law.

It must not be allowed to confuse red tape with proper spending safeguards, inefficiency with the proper and legal procedures. A government which ignores or circumvents the law in small matters may do the same in larger affairs.

A Lot of Human Rights

Chinese pilot Fan Yuan-yen peeled off from his squadron of MiG-19 fighter jets along the Taiwan Strait and streaked for the offshore island known as Taiwan, Nationalist China and Formosa.

"Comrades, it's the communists who forced me to do this. I just cannot take it any more," he is reported to have said after safely landing at a Taiwan airbase.

He said he came to seek "freedom and human rights which are totally lacking on the China mainland."

Fan's been listening to Jimmy Carter, perhaps. More likely the lure broadcast by the Nationalists was the clinching argument. Upon landing he got 312 pounds (yes, pounds) of gold, worth some $800,000.

Too Many Generalities

OTTAWA—The Commons chose to rededicate itself to national unity last week after a rather nebulous debate which yielded little in the way of new ideas. While spokesmen for the various parties demonstrated their usual skill in misrepresenting each other's positions, they were much less successful in differentiating their own approaches.

As would be expected, the prime minister placed greatest emphasis on language policy. He was accused by Joe Clark and Ed Broadbent of excessive preoccupation with that subject.

Broadbent made perhaps the most pointed criticism. In reference to Trudeau, he said: "Throughout the period since 1967 he has been trying to apply the principle of the Official Languages Act and to gain acceptance for it across Canada. And it is precisely in the same period that the forces of separatism have gained ground."

Clark's emphasis was on a "more regionally-based federalism." Although he rejects special status, he is in favor of unidentified constitutional changes and feels that in the meantime different provinces should be permitted to have different administrative arrangements with the government of Canada. Broadbent, on the contrary, holds that the federal government is already too weak. He is apparently persuaded that the problem of disunity must be tackled primarily through more national programs and an attack on our serious economic problems.

Already Weak

On close inspection, however, the "options" (Broadbent's word) do not appear to be very clear cut. While the parties are anxious to be different, especially in a season of election talk, they are wary of sounding too different. Each has a theme but none, at this stage, is willing to bet everything on it.

Consider first the prime minister's alleged obsession. He said: "I cannot emphasize strongly enough that the question of unity is not confined to the issue of language, nor confined geographically to the province of Quebec." Then, noting that more linguistic equality for French-speaking Canadians would require accommodations by English-speaking Canadians, he asked the question: "But why should English-speaking Canadians make such accommodations?" His answer was: "Frankly, they will do so only if they feel that confederation is worth it to them and only if they feel that they too are benefitting from the federal system and that it is meeting their aspirations."

Trudeau went on to explain this point in a manner which should have impressed Broadbent but didn't. Those aspirations, he suggested, would have to be met by a successful fight against inflation and high unemployment; by the quality of social programs; by transportation and resource development, by progress in overcoming regional disparities.

The prime minister also had words which ought to have had some appeal for Joe Clark but didn't. The government, he said, had already begun a "far-reaching review of our federal system and constitution" and would pay close attention to the views of the provincial premiers. "We are quite willing to discuss with the premiers the whole gamut of Canada's constitutional arrangements. We are willing to discuss in other words the most profound reforms and fundamental changes in any and all aspects of our federal system from A to Z."

JOE CLARK
. . . bilingualism divides

The only exclusion was any formula proceeding from the premise that Canada could be other than a unified country. No federalist party could quarrel with that.

Clark was reproached for observing, perhaps more truthfully than tactfully, that bilingualism, by definition, does not unite but divide. He called it a "necessary goal but . . . not the glue which will hold this country together." It would be difficult to argue that it has done much gluing to date. On the other hand, the Conservative leader did not counsel a retreat from the language policy. He said: "The programs so far introduced by the federal government are hopelessly inadequate, given the size of the task."

While no one disputed Broadbent's argument that disunity is aggravated by unsolved economic problems, it is obvious that the NDP leader's point against the Trudeau language policies can be turned against his own case. The Parti Quebecois did not come from nowhere to win an election in the high-inflation, high-unemployment year of 1976. It came up in the buoyant '60s and won a strong legislative bridgehead in 1970, taking seven seats and running second in perhaps one-third of the Quebec constituencies.

On constitutional matters, Broadbent was as vague as Clark. It is his view, very sensible in my opinion, that "the basic structure of our constitution is sound." He also observed that "some constitutional change is necessary; some is inevitable." What is necessary and inevitable and why, the NDP leader did not reveal.

It may be the message of the debate that there is no sovereign remedy for our problems of disunity. If our situation is now serious, it is not because they are new but because they are out of control. The condition of survival is that they be tackled in many ways, as all parties in fact agree.

New Task Force

The prime minister included in his speech the expected announcement of the appointment of the Pepin-Robarts task force. To this, no one objects in principle. The Conservatives argued, however, that a special joint committee of the two houses should be established, in order to keep parliament at the centre of things.

There is no reason why the task force and committee propositions should be considered mutually exclusive. We did in fact have such a joint committee chaired by Senator Molgat and Mark MacGuigan which produced a fairly ambitious report on the constitution of Canada five years ago. Why should it not be revived to review suggestions which may come up from time to time, as a result partly of the work of the task force?

On the other hand, Clark's motion was much too broad to be taken seriously. The committee he proposed would recommend "such constitutional, economic and social measures as will allow the federal system to respond fully to the needs of all Canadians." That would mean a committee on everything advising a parliament already over-burdened with committees. Parliament does not lack opportunities to discuss the economic and social foundations of national unity. It tends to be much weaker in discussing the constitution as shown by its constant resort to generalities — as in the most recent debate.

Teaching Morals

Since our British Columbia government has presented its bill for token support of private schools, the protests have become more and more vociferous and paranoid.

I would like to refute some of these time-worn arguments:

(1) The B.C. Teachers Federation says the bill is unprecedented in Canada. On the contrary, every province in Canada, with the exception of Manitoba, recognizes the right of parents to send their children to the school of their choice and to direct their tax dollars to those schools. The argument that childless people do not have this choice is irrelevant. The survival of every human being is dependent on there being a new generation to take over when the preceding generations become too old to do so. Therefore people who do not bear the responsibility and expense of raising children owe those who do an incalculable debt.

(2) That private schools are divisive. Are people then to be raised like peas in a pod? If this is so whose standards are to be assumed? Since children of lesser academatic ability obviously cannot achieve the level of those with higher ability, are all children then to be channelled to the lowest common denominator? Silly you say, well, would not anything else be divisive? Some children are innovators, some have scholastic inclinations, others are creative and work better with their hands. Where is the meeting place or should they all scrap their talents and find some common meeting point? If being different is being divisive then it follows that all adults should belong to the same organizations, dress alike, do the same kind of work, buy the same things and so on and on. Would this then mean a world of complete harmony?

(3) That private schools are either elitist or, far worse, teach religion. It has been said that anyone can go through the door of a public school and teach children his-her particular stock-in-trade with only one exception — God. The fundamental underlying teaching of every religion is to love your neighbour as yourself. So what is so wrong with religion and God? When public schools teach sex education it is devoid of any morality. No one, they say, has the right to impose their moral standards on others. Why must moral standards always be on the defensive? These same people then proceed to teach their own particular brand of immorality to our children and go unchallenged. Where do they get the right to do this? Casual promiscuous sex, illegitimacy, abortion, pornography, alcoholism, drug addiction and the easy sale of drugs in schools, crimes of violence, theft and murder are all flourishing — with British Columbia the undisputed Canadian leader — so why mess all this good stuff up by imposing religion, with its inevitable moral standards, on our children?

Basically the objections to parental choice in education — and how can there be said to be a free democratic choice if all schools are not provided with funding — seem to come from those opposed to the teaching of religion and morality.

If nothing else anti-religious bigotry is still alive and well in British Columbia! — P. C. Malone, 2837 Adelaide Avenue.

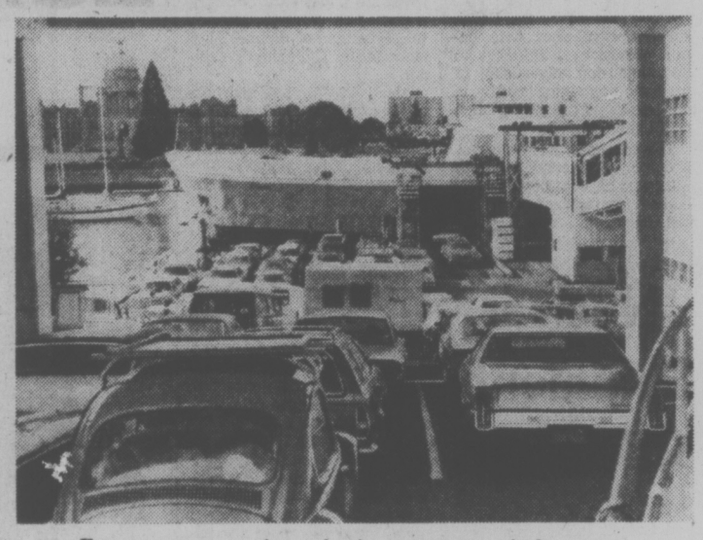
Banks Supported

May I, through the medium of your paper, heartily endorse the letter of Dr. Dr. Peter Banks re: the Victoria General Hospital, instead of Helmcken Road site, from a patient's point of view.

My brothers and I have received the utmost in kindness both at St. Joseph's and, as it is now called, the Victoria General, and have been there several times, two of us having Dr. Banks as consultant.

I had long thought that the site of the former convent was a natural place for any addition and now see that this was intended.

When a man of Dr. Banks' knowledge and intelligence writes such an excellent letter to the paper in favor of Victoria General, I think (and many like myself) that Health Minister McClelland should take a second or third look before committing himself to a program which is unnecessary, expensive and inconvenient to all the physicians, surgeons, hospital staff, ambulances and all the varied medical services.—Miss C. Nairne, 642 Battery.



Every summer, coming and going gets progressively worse.

Coho Congestion

As an American tourist this is the 10th time I have come to Victoria in the summer. Every year getting here and going back gets more difficult. I believe this is a major cause of your tourist (or lack of) problem.

For tourists living on the west coast clear down to California, the easiest route onto the Island is via U.S. 101. This goes to Port Angeles. Until two years ago, the Coho and the Princess Marguerite came to Port Angeles. Both were full all summer. Two years ago B.C. took the Marguerite off this run and that doubled the congestion on the Coho.

It takes a whole day to go that 18 miles either way. By the time an American tourist steps onto Government Street, half his tourist dollars are gone to pay for motels and meals waiting to get on the Coho in Port Angeles. With the increase in B.C. ferry rates, now the Canadians are also cluttering the Coho which costs less.

Getting back is even worse. One time it took me 11 hours to get to Port Angeles on the Coho. I went through U.S. Customs after 9 p.m. I had been parked in line since early morning. If I get the car down there by 8 a.m., I consider myself lucky to get on the 3 p.m. Coho.

When Washington State takes off the Sidney ferry it will be still worse. I think many Americans want to visit Vancouver Island on holiday but will just simply give up because it's getting so tiresome.

Without a car one's tourist buying has to be very limited to what one can easily carry.

I think it would pay B.C. handsomely to run a ferry to Port Angeles, not in ferry profit but in tourist dollars spent on the Island — A. Rae Patton, Port Townsend, Washington

UVic and Nelson

Recently articles have been published on the intent of Notre Dame University professors to charge the provincial government with unfair labour practices arising out of legislation contained in the recently introduced Bill 68. Comments have been attributed to me which, when taken out of context, are potentially misleading.

As I indicated, the University of Victoria is currently engaged in academic planning activities designed to respond to a number of the reported needs of the less well-populated centres in the interior of this Province. These proposals may or may not be attractive to the Nelson community, a decision which will have to be made eventually by the recently appointed Interior University Programs Board. In any case, the question of becoming directly involved in the Notre Dame University situation had not been, at the time of the articles, the topic of any recent formal consideration at UVic.

Having indicated our general interest in interior program planning, I then went on to point out that the question of some form of academic relationship involving the Notre Dame University campus had been considered during the term of the previous minister of education, Eileen Dailly. Because of the various economic and academic constraints suggested at that time, our institution elected not to pursue the matter further. It was at this point that I indicated that the existence of the Faculty Association of Notre Dame University had not been "a major deterrent" to our possible involvement. In other words, the University of Victoria rejected the idea of attempting to assist with the Notre Dame situation some three years ago for reasons of academic and economic viability, and not because of the existence of FANDU.

Since this matter could potentially affect UVic at some time in the future, possible involvement in the Nelson area by UVic was considered by our Board of Governors at its regular meeting on June 24, 1977. At that time, support was indicated for a variety of feasibility programs in the Nelson area of our province. However, it was emphasized that under no circumstances would such programs be considered should it appear necessary for us to assume "successor rights" status with respect to the Faculty Association of Notre Dame University. This decision on the part of the University of Victoria reflects no animosity toward FANDU; rather, it points to the critical necessity of maintaining the autonomy of UVic with respect to faculty hiring practices.

Hopefully, this decision will clarify for your readers the position of the University of Victoria on this important matter. — K. George Pedersen, Vice-President, University of Victoria.

Brute Replies

With regard to this most unfortunate happening, "Brute" wishes to state that he shouted repeatedly to the lady, from a distance of about 50 yards, to call her dog back; he turned around at once and tried desperately to fend off the lady's dog, who, disobeying her orders continued running towards the 'vicious' one. The man, according to park regulations, kept the 'vicious dog' firmly on the leash, and unlike the lady, did not even for one moment permit him to roam around freely. If only the lady had taken the same care, her pet could have never reached the larger one, as he, most unfortunately, did. The sensible thing then was to take the excited animal away, but when the man came back, the lady had already left by car.

Far from being the insensible monster, as depicted in the Lady's letter, the man, too, was greatly upset and badly shaken, for no real dog lover could possibly enjoy a dogfight. If it had been his fault, he would be man enough to apologize. Even so, the lady may rest assured that he is most unhappy about the incident, for he, too, loves people and animals, and he hopes that the lady will take some more lenient views of the matter. May God bless her: — "Brute," Dog-owner.

Bureaucrats Run 'New Patronage'

"I know that in this city of Ottawa, for example, there are a number of instances where as many as 10 members of a single family work for the post office department. When you find that that clerk is very confident of his position because he has a brother-in-law or somebody else in the personnel department to protect him."
—Lloyd Francis, MP
Ottawa West,
speech reported in Hansard.

By PAUL ST. PIERRE
The Sun

OTTAWA — Civil service hirings are supposed to be based upon a system of public competitions which ensure that only the fittest shall serve us and that political patronage shall not deliver unto us incompetents at taxpayer expense.

If so, one may wonder, as does Mr. Francis, how one or more Ottawa families have bred a strain of candidates who consistently score higher than others on the examinations for post office jobs.

The distribution of a few

FRANCIS

mail clerk and letter carrier jobs is not an issue likely to make the populace light their pine faggots, seize their pitchforks and march on Parliament Hill. The interest of Mr. Francis is particular. Families with breadwinners in the civil service make up 60 per cent of the voters in his riding, they decide victory or defeat for candidates, and he has had the benefit of both experiences since he entered politics in 1963.

However, civil service hiring practices have interest for Canadians outside Ottawa as well. The federal government is the biggest employer in Canada by a considerable margin. If its hiring practices are unfair or corrupt, we all get the privilege of paying for it.

Like generals who can only fight old wars, the general public focuses all its considerable powers of suspicion on the threat of political patronage.

Political patronage has not disappeared, nor will it ever, but as a threat to the common weal it ranks today below hailstorms and the rose thrip. Many, many governments ago, we introduced a merit system for the civil service in which the politician could scarcely enter.

(Giving up the privilege of putting party faithful on the payroll was not an entirely selfless act. Many politicians learned that for every friend you make by handing out a civil service job, you make six enemies among the disappointed.)

When the Public Service Commission took over the job of hiring, depending for the most part on competitive examinations for choice among candidates, all those old, grubby problems of fairness and efficiency would seem to have been resolved. Of course they were not. Basic problems are never resolved, they merely take on a new form. The case of the family post office jobs would seem to be a form of the new patronage, a patronage operated not by the politicians but by the civil servants themselves.

There is a widespread and growing suspicion that the public competitions, advertised so lavishly in newspapers, are less than they seem to be—that positions are often not advertised until the successful candidate has already been privately chosen. If no applicants need apply for a civil engineer's job except ones who have spent three years in Pangnirtung and written a thesis on Roman aquaducts, it may well be that only the personnel manager's nephew will be discovered to have such qualifications.

Rigged competitions are hard to prove, except in so extreme a case. But if they do pervade the service, they have been made easier during recent years.

In 1958 the Heeney Report said the Civil Service Commission should be empowered to delegate some hiring functions to deputy ministers, who would in turn delegate the authority to others in their departments.

The Glassco Commission, formed to improve civil service efficiency, made this a policy. The commission was critical of the merit system, alleging it had "become an end in itself, overriding the need to 'get the job done.'"

The Public Service Commission, as it was then known, began delegating the authority to hire to the departments. There was a wholesale switchover after 1968. By 1971, when a temporary moratorium on the policy was declared, 70 per cent of hiring was in control of the deputies and their juniors.

Their record does not delight Mr. Francis, or other MPs who are nourishing some dark suspicions.

In 1974, auditors of the PSC made a random sample of 7,082 departmental hirings out of the 74,980 hirings of a 10-month period. The audit revealed 1,946 departmental infractions of the Public Services Employment Act and 2,754 errors in carrying out directives or administrative requirements of the act. That is, one-quarter of the hirings were faulty.

The auditors are using a different system of checking now and are not releasing figures on how many civil service hirings violate the act. One wonders why.

There is yet another investigation of the new patronage now being conducted. It is not known when the investigators will report.

In Mr. Francis' opinion, the best thing that can happen is for the Public Service Commission to retrieve its hiring powers from the departments, whatever the inefficiencies that Mr. Glassco perceived in that system. In 1977-78 the civil service increase is to be only six-tenths of one per cent, well below the 1.4 per cent of last year and the very high rates of years previous.

But neither Mr. Francis nor anybody else on Parliament Hill believes that nepotism, favoritism, or cronyism can be erased. Even political party favoritism can exist under the present system although, since it is the faceless, nameless civil servants who exercise the privilege, the favoritism may be extended toward opposition parties as well as government parties or, for that matter, toward adherents of parties that cannot gain seats in the House of Commons.

GLASSCO

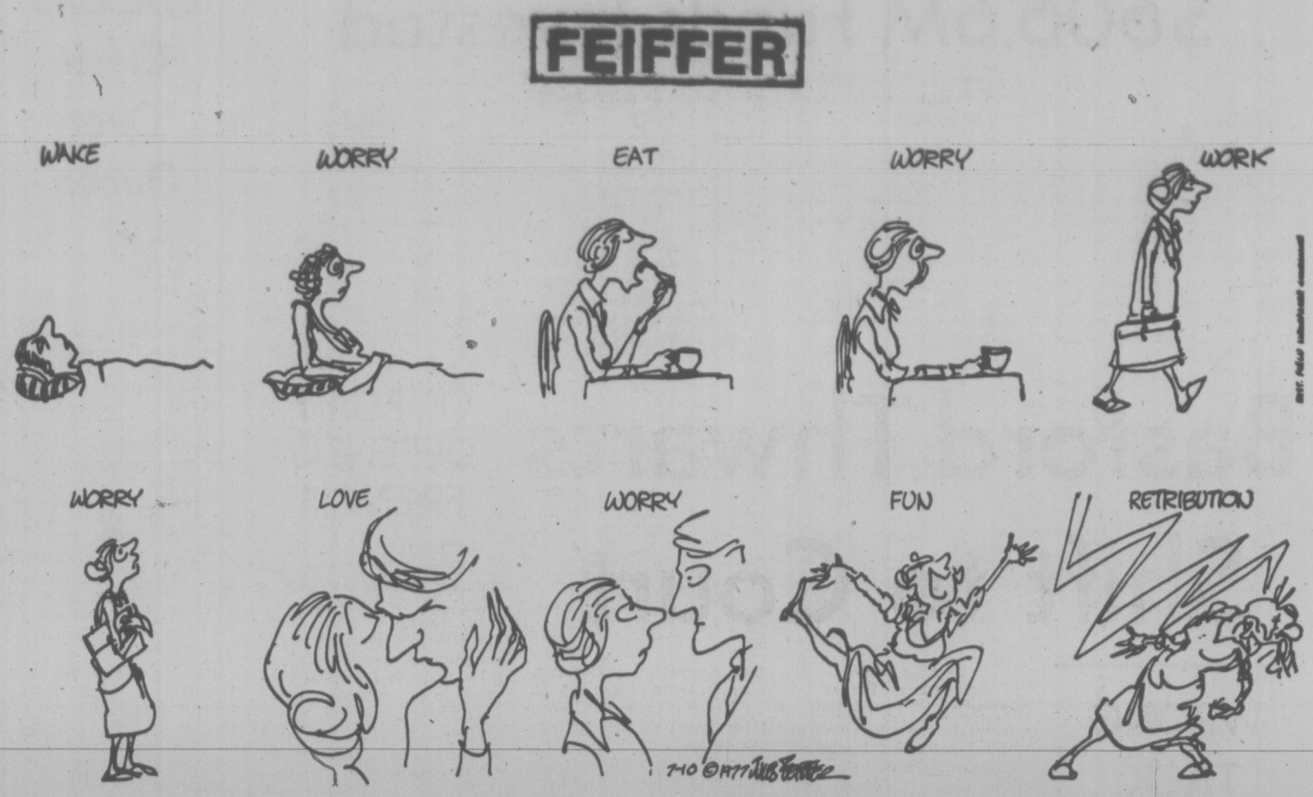
The new patronage, it seems, is as hard to identify and prove as was the old.



Castro, Carter and Coke Connection

By WILLIAM SAFIRE
New York Times

The Atlanta-based Coca-Cola Company's long-term investment in U.S. President Jimmy Carter has begun to pay off.

Campaign contributions from Coca-Cola executives swelled the Carter coffers when he was governor of Georgia; Coca-Cola corporate aircraft bounded him around the nation, as he picked up political support while ostensibly promoting the state; and Coca-Cola chairman J. Paul Austin hosted a luncheon in New York's "21" to raise a bundle for the Carter presidential campaign.

That was the investment: here is the return:

Coke is the biggest buyer of sugar in the world — a million tons a year — and wants prices kept low. Strangely, as sugar prices have dropped, soft-drink prices have risen, a market anomaly that Coke would like to see continue.

But because of sugar-dumping around the world, the price is now too low to produce profitably in the U.S. To keep U.S. producers in business and to prevent future price-gouging, the U.S. Trade Commission, after lengthy study, recommended a two-cent duty on incoming sugar.

Coke did not like that. Through the "Sugar Users Group" — a trade lobby run by Coca-Cola vice-president John Mount — it sold the Carter administration a scheme that would save big processors money at the expense of taxpayers.

President Carter rejected the two-cent duty (which would have added money to the U.S. Treasury) and instead proposed a subsidy (taking money from the Treasury). In the name of free trade, Carter adopted a weird form of protection: instead of raising the price of sugar to Coca-Cola with a duty, he would protect corporations like Coke by paying their suppliers an estimated $240 million a year to cover losses.

Using the Carter connection. On June 4, Coke's J. Paul Austin went to Havana to meet with Fidel Castro. Upon his return from Cuba, Austin met in the White House with his friend, recent Coca-Cola stockholder Jimmy Carter.

The Coca-Cola Company refuses to say what Austin discussed with Carter or Castro. The White House also refuses to reveal what Austin reported.

A few questions arise. Whom did Austin represent in his talk with Castro? Since Coca-cola stockholders paid for the trip and since Coca-Cola has a $27.5 million claim against Cuba for the confiscation of its properties in 1961, one would assume the Coke chairman went on behalf of the Coca-Cola Company.

CARTER

CASTRO
. . . talks

Why, then, the hush-hush briefing to the president immediately upon his return? The White House insists that Austin was not sent as an emissary. Coca-Cola stonewalls completely, saying only that Austin and Carter did not discuss sugar prices.

Assuming that to be true, logic dictates the answer: Austin carried the president's personal greetings to Castro; after talking business, the Coke chairman asked if he could carry a message to his friend, President Carter; and the Cuban leader took him up on the kind offer, just as Austin and Carter knew he would.

That was the reason for the Austin-Carter White House meeting immediately upon his return from Cuba. The president now has an "unofficial channel" on matters affecting trade relations between the U.S. and Cuba — who happens to have huge economic interest in the outcome.

What's wrong with that? Everything.

First, the unofficial ambassador trick neatly circumvents the Congress, which is supposed to confirm and be able to question ambassadors. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee is still a doormat, but one hopes the House International Affairs Committee — as well as the overseers of foreign trade decisions — will soon question the man who is carrying the word from Castro.

Second, the president's conscious use of Austin involves the White House in the most brazen conflict of interest. It is no secret that Coca-Cola is dying to do business with Cuba, especially if the U.S. taxpayer is made to subsidize the U.S. cane, beet and corn sweeteners — in that case, is the Coke boss really the person to use for "reports" or private messages from Cuba's boss?

The Carter-Coke-Castro sugar diplomacy is not merely a potential conflict of interest. It's the real thing.

In Defence of Gossip

By BORDEN SPEARS
Toronto Star

Psst. Gossip is in. Pass it on.

Gossip has always been a minor component of journalism but just now it seems to be the trendiest commodity going. People magazine has built popular success on it and imitators are appearing. Tabloid gossip sheets thrive. The newsmagazines, now including Maclean's, have flourishing gossip departments. Legions of readers would feel deprived if the daily Names in the News column failed to appear. And increasingly the serious news stories are marked, or marred, by gossipy asides that have little direct bearing on the issue under review.

Many concerned people, journalists as well as readers, find the trend deplorable. Carl Bernstein of the Washington Post's Watergate team condemned it last week. The usual grounds for objection are that gossip is irrelevant to the world's real concerns, that it intrudes on privacy and that it is often in bad taste.

True enough; yet some kind of case can also be made for the defence. The gossip of today becomes part of the stuff of history; if journalism is current history, can it leave the gossip out?

In the first half of the 16th century there was no richer source of scandalous gossip than the marital life of Henry VIII. Erase it from the record, and you could not understand why England became a Protestant country.

Plutarch wrote like a modern journalist, mixing racy personal anecdote with considerations of strategy and politics. Thanks largely to him, with an assist from Shakespeare, everyone is aware how Mark Antony's obsession with Cleopatra cost him the Parthian campaign and the battle of Actium and changed the history of Europe.

John Wain's biography of Samuel Johnson deals exhaustively with the effect on Johnson's career of his repressed but guilt-ridden sexual life. Much of it is informed speculation, in the style of interpretative journalism. But Wain is not a journalist; he is an Oxford professor of poetry. Should journalism alone be excluded from the exercise?

Many would say yes because the subjects of journalism are still alive and the effect of their private conduct on public events should be left to the verdict of history. Something like this persuaded the British press to omit all mention of the romance between Edward VIII and Wallis Simpson. In the result, the people remained ignorant of a constitutional crisis and were stunned by Edward's abdication. One job of journalism is to forstall such shocks; they should have printed the gossip.

MURDOCH
. . . 'tedium is the message'

It is not mere coincidence that these random examples, and others closer to home, are all concerned with relationships between the sexes. This has always been prime material for gossip among individuals but only recently has become conspicuous in journalism. There is a tinge of hypocrisy in scorning the press for engaging in a favorite occupation of its customers.

In this respect the press is in fact lagging behind the public. Preoccupation with sex, licit and illicit, is a hallmark of the age. It is evident in literature, in the lively arts, in public conduct, in the shops that offer physical aids to gratification. The worst excesses of daily journalism are a pale shadow of the offering in any corner bookstall. This is not to condone the excesses. Scandal for scandal's sake is cheap journalism which diminishes both reader and publisher. But there is a line between scandal and gossip and gossip has its place.

The oldest axiom of journalism is that news should be "told in terms of people." Statesmen come alive, and engage our attention as well as our sympathy, when we know something of their personalities and habits as wellas the issues with which they struggle. The chatty asides in a news report may be not only harmless but illuminating.

Rupert Murdoch, the contentious Australian press baron, recently defended his own garish style of journalism by remarking that "too many newspapers seem preoccupied with covering the machinery of government, rather than the lives of the governed. Too often they appear to be engaged in solemn dialogue with themselves. Too often the tedium is the message." He has a point; to be serious is not necessarily to be dull.

It has been noted that those who deplore gossip usually read it. As one of Saki's characters remarked; "Hating anything in the way of ill-natured gossip ourselves, we are always grateful to those who do it for us and do it well."

$606.6M Funds Invested

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government invested $606.66 million of Canada Pension Plan funds in provincial and federal securities during the second quarter of this year, an increase from $516.51 million in the comparable 1976 period, the finance department announced Monday.

Terms of the Canada Pension Plan provide that all funds received but not needed to meet expenses and benefit payments during the following three months are transferred to an investment fund.

The amount that is available in any particular month may be borrowed by the issue of special securities by provinces, their Crown agencies or the federal government.

These are non-marketable securities with terms up to 20 years, bearing interest at comparable rates for marketable bonds.

The amount that a province may borrow is determined by the contributions paid by its citizens. In Quebec, which has its own pension plan, the amount is determined by contributions of some federal employees, such as armed forces members, who pay into the Canada Pension Plan.

Any amounts not taken by the provinces must be taken by the federal government.

Ontario was the biggest borrower, taking $327.54 million in the April-June period. Among the other provinces, British Columbia borrowed $90.96 million; Alberta $61.61 million; Manitoba $34.94 million; Saskatchewan $26.55 million; Nova Scotia $24.15 million; New Brunswick $18.29 million; Newfoundland $12.62 million; Quebec $2.95 million, and Prince Edward Island $2.61 million.

The federal government borrowed $4.42 million.

Basford Thwarts Shift to Court

By KEN POLE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — An Opposition attempt to have the government's controversial wiretap legislation referred to the Supreme Court of Canada was thwarted Monday by Justice Minister Ron Basford.

Calgary MP Eldon Woolliams, a noted trial lawyer, said the proposed Criminal Code amendments are a violation of civil rights because "the law has no business in the homes of its law-abiding citizens, rooting around for information."

He said the Supreme Court should study the proposals before they become law to ensure they comply with the Bill of Rights provisions affecting privacy and freedom.

Basford replied that he always tries to prevent such referrals to the high court, which, he said, "like any other, prefers to deal, if at all possible, with factual situations."

Anyway, he added, the amendments that were recently approved by the Commons justice and legal affairs committee, of which Woolliams is a member, were along the lines of Law Reform Commission recommendations.

Set up in 1971, the commission is a federally-funded group that studies all statutes and makes recommendations on improvement and modernization.

The wiretap proposals are part of a larger bill which, if passed by parliament — and there seems little doubt that it will pass because of the Liberal majority in the Commons — also would affect such things as gun controls and the penal system.

Woolliams, a Progressive Conservative, is concerned about so-called "derivative evidence" collected on police wiretaps, evidence not related specifically to the case for which a warrant is issued.

Last month, the Liberal-dominated justice committee passed a Basford-introduced amendment that would enable a judge to refuse derivative evidence when it was felt it "would bring the administration of justice into disrepute."

Basford said he believes this would include unauthorized wiretaps or those permitted as a result of fraud or perjury by police applicants.

The amendment would alter a provision of the 1974 Protection of Privacy Act that rules out derivative evidence altogether in the case of illegal or technically faulty wiretaps.

For example, a Vancouver case was tossed out of court because the signature of the judge on the wiretap warrant was illegible.

The derivative evidence in that case, heroin found because of the wiretap, was no longer admissible in codrt.

Monday's debate centred on an amendment that would require the government to bring before Parliament for approval any Cabinet-ordered changes in the regulations governing gun controls.

By tradition, only cabinet approval is required to bring in new regulations. However, they are sent to a Commons committee for all-party study.

Dan McKenzie (PC—Winnipeg South Centre) said the government of Prime Minister Trudeau would make criminals of gun owners overnight because the public would be unaware of regulation changes.

He said Parliament is being seriously weakened "by the Trudeau dictatorship with orders-in-council."

Stan Schumacher (PC—Palliser) said it is "time to stop being so free and easy in giving the executive such powers."

Since most crimes were committed with handguns, not covered under the proposed bill, legislation dealing with that problem should be introduced, he said.

Alex Patterson (PC—Fraser Valley East) told Basford that all cabinet orders dealing with the Criminal Code should be placed before Parliament.

Basford already has rejected such a proposal, saying Parliament could not cope with the numbers.

WRONG TACK: McKAY

OTTAWA (CP) — Nova Scotia MP Elmer MacKay said Monday that the government has its priorities reversed if it goes ahead with its inquiry into the RCMP but refuses to inquire into organized crime.

Justice Minister Ron Basford replied in the Commons that after thorough discussions with provincial attorneys-general, he concluded that an organized crime inquiry now would not be appropriate.

MacKay (PC—Central Nova) said the government reversed an earlier decision not to inquire into evidence of illegal activities by the RCMP. It might also reverse its position on a crime inquiry.

Solicitor-General Francis Fox announced last week creation of a royal commission to look into alleged illegal acts of the RCMP, particularly the illegal 1971 break-in at the Agence de Presse Libre du Quebec in Montreal.

Fox said Monday his department would also be represented at the Quebec inquiry to look into the break-in.

Alberta Shocks On Way

CAMROSE, Alta. (CP)—If attendnace at a Liberal party affair is any indication, Jack Horner's switch to the Liberals may be copied by other Progressive Conseratives in Alberta.

There were some surprises at the meeting of federal party executives and potential candidates, including former Conservative MPs and a former Social Credit MLA.

The former Social Credit was one-time provincial works minister Albert Ludwig, who said he will seek the Liberal nomination in Calgary East.

Another prominent name not previously associated with the Liberals was that of Dan Hollands, Conservative MP for Pembina from 1972 to 1974. Also on hand was Norval Horner, a former Conservative MP and brother of Jack Horner, now a Liberal cabinet minister.

Ludwig said his move into the Liberal camp is not an about-face from his Social Credit beliefs. "I would not have to compromise myself in this party; there are no conflicts," he said.

Paper Company Probes Pay-back

TORONTO (CP) — Officials of Reed Paper Ltd., of Toronto, say the company is investigating possible unauthorized payment of almost $100,000 involving Lord Ryder, former chairman and chief executive officer of Reed's parent company, Reed International Ltd. of Britain.

A statement by the parent company said the payment was made to Lord Ryder, now head of Britain's National Enterprise Board, by a third party at the request of a senior executive of Reed Paper in Canada. Reed Paper later reimbursed the third party.

J. W. S. McOuat, vice-president and general counsel of Reed Paper in Canada, said the money had been repaid to the Canadian company by Lord Ryder. McQuat refused to identify the third party or the executive involved.

"The matter is under investigation," McOuat said. "We have no comment."

Lord Ryder said he believed the payment to him in 1975 was a gift.

The payment was disclosed Monday by Reed International in London as an amplification to an auditor's note in the company's annual report for the year ended March 31.

The company's statement said the transaction had been brought to its attention during preparation of the report.

The statement said a payment equal to £49,500 ($100,000) was made to the third party in 1976. The payment to Lord Ryder was made in 1975 following his retirement from Reed International as chairman and chief executive officer in 1974.

OUELLET DEFENDS FRENCH

QUEBEC (CP) — Only a small minority of English-speaking Canadians oppose bilingual air-traffic control over Quebec skies, Andre Ouellet, federal minister of urban affairs, said Monday.

He told the Canadian Construction Association that Mexican pilots land safely speaking Spanish and that Chinese pilots land safely speaking Chinese.

"Why is it not possible for a French-Canadian pilot to speak his own language and land safely in Quebec?"

Ouellet was commenting on a report released last week on air-traffic control. It says the the safety aspects of bilingual use of both English and French could be safe for visual flight operations at some Quebec airports.

Rejection of bilingualism in the air would indicate "a total lack of tolerance and understanding among English Canadians," Ouellet said, adding: "We will not bargain on this question."

The minister repeated calls for a third alternative to settle the constitutional debate and keep Quebec in Confederation.

He described the status quo and separation from Canada as two extreme positions for Quebec.

PM, Diefenbaker Clash Over Queen

OTTAWA (CP) — The fire was in John Diegenbaker's eyes, and the cause was a familiar one — suspected slight to the Queen.

The former prime minister rose in the Commons Monday to ask Prime Minister Trudeau if Queen Elizabeth really would open Parliament this fall.

When Trudeau answered that he would make an announcement on the issue "in due course", Diefenbaker shot back, "Why is there this unnecessary evasion?"

"Months ago the prime minister said he had this (the Royal visit) in mind. I now ask him: has it gone out of his mind, or does he intend to have her here?"

Trudeau then jabbed his opponent's monarchial sentiments in a painful spot, saying "he is not a member in full standing of the Royal Society of Canada, as I am."

Diefenbaker retorted by twigging Trudeau for his well-known pirouette in Buckingham Palace in May, and added that France delayed his visit two days out of fear that the Canadian prime minister would "do the can-can in Paris."

Trudeau, smiling broadly, said "it's about the pirouette. . ." but was cut off by the speaker.

However, Diefenbaker seemed reassured when the prime minister said the Queen had "accepted with pleasure" his invitation to read the speech from the throne.

Gillespie Defended In AECL Scandal

By DON BRAID
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau Monday defended Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie, against a barrage of opposition charges that the minister is incompetent and should resign.

Trudeau told the Commons that Gillespie couldn't be blamed for the loss of $180 million on the sale of a nuclear power station to Argentina by Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd.

"The rules are quite well established that the minister should not involve himself in the day-to-day operations of a Crown corporation," Trudeau said in response to a question by Conservative House Leader Walter Baker.

"Surely even Baker would not argue that it should have been the minister's role to negotiate this contract when a Crown corporation was the agency."

He repeated a promise made last week that legislation would be introduced soon to "give the government power to intervene in the operation of Crown corporations."

But, despite the heated demands of Opposition leader Joe Clark, Trudeau wouldn't give assurances that the government would refer annual reports of Crown corporations to House committees.

Opposition members also pressed the prime minister for information about Polysar, a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Canada Development Corporation which paid kickbacks to foreign customers to obtain sales.

In response to a question about whether the government intends to give details of the kickbacks to governments of countries where they were paid, Trudeau responded only that he hasn't read the report.

Sask.'s Helium Plant Still Up in the Air

SWIFT CURRENT, Sask. (CP) — The future of the only helium plant in the Western world outside the United States is still up in the air.

Canadian Helium Ltd. said last December its plant, 16 miles north of this southwestern Saskatchewan city, would probably close down sometime this year because of flooding in the gas wells.

The flooding in the wells was trapping the gas and making the helium, a byproduct found in certain natural gas formations, unreachable.

Helium, a colorless, odorless gas, weighing one-seventh as much as air, has a variety of defence, industrial, medical and space research uses.

Canadian Helium said it will continue to operate the plant as long as it is economically feasible.

Helium reserves have been found in the Mankota and Wood Mountain areas, 70 miles and 90 miles southeast of Swift Current, respectively.

But market demand and economic feasibility considerations are holding back a Calgary-based company's decision to give the plant a new life.

Mineral Resources International (MRI) owns the wells in Mankota and Wood Mountain, and C. F. Agar, MRI president, says his company is interested in developing the helium reserves in Mankota.

Agar said Canadian Helium has offered to sell the plant to MRI for less than $1 million —but the low purchase price alone does not justify acquiring the plant.

"They have offered to sell us the plant, but at the same time advised us that they doubted if the cost of dismantling the plant and moving it to Mankota would be worthwhile at the current price of helium," Agar said.

"At this point the Swift Current plant represents a real dilemma for us. We have an opportunity to acquire it at almost its scrap metal value, but at current prices the cost of moving it makes the venture not worthwhile."

On the other hand, "If we don't buy it and later the helium market firms up, we could be looking at a cost of over $6 million to build a new plant."

Agar said the price of helium would have to double from its current $22 per 1,000 cubic feet to make the move of the Swift Current plant to Mankota worthwhile.

MRI has also considered the possibility of building a pipeline to ship the Mankota helium here — but once again found the cost prohibitive.

Agar said a third option being examined is purchasing the plant now and put it in mothballs until the price of helium reaches the point where it would be economical to move it or build the pipeline.

He said although the Swift Current plant is the only one outside the U.S. and the Communist bloc production has exceeded demand since the U.S. cut back on its space program.

The U.S. government has large reserves which were stored when it needed to be assured of supplies for its space program. Since then, the U.S. has been releasing these reserves for sale.

"The irony of the situation is that helium reserves in the world are not growing and eventually there is going to be a demand for helium," Agar said.

"By 1990 we expect the only source of helium will be in the air.

Aerospace Firm Set for Takeoff

LONDON (CP) — British Aerospace, the newly-nationalized aircraft and missile company, is set for takeoff into the turbulent international aviation business.

After a stormy passage through Parliament this spring, British Aerospace was set up to take over British Aircraft Corp., Hawker Siddeley Aviation, Hawker Siddeley Dynamics and Scottish Aviation.

It now runs the bulk of Britain's aviation industry, although compensation for the former owners still has to be settled.

Its chairmen, Lord Beswick, has stressed that although under new management the companies will remain intact to serve overseas customers.

"They now are banded together in British Aerospace, and British Aerospace is going to be a very big power indeed," Lord Beswick has told the industry.

"Already it can stand comparison with any company in the world — and it is going to stay that way."

The giant firm has inherited orders worth £1.5 billion ($2.7 billion), 70 per cent for export.

Employing about 60,000 workers, it now has on the stocks eight civil aircraft, including supersonic Concorde, eight military types, eight guided weapons and several research projects, mostly linked to satellite programs.

To meet tough United States competition in the high-cost development of airliners, fighters and bombers, Lord Beswick has called for co-operation among Europe's own aircraft builders.

The company is looking for a corner of the growing market that is expected in the next few years as airlines replace existing fleets of 707s, DC-8s and other standbys of the 1960s.

New Floor Traders Allowed in Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec Securities Commission (QSC) has approved a plan by the Montreal Stock Exchange (MSE) to allow a new kind of trader on the floor who will have no dealings with the investment public and will trade exclusively in his own account.

Dominik Dlouhy, chairman of the MSE, said approval of the plan was a first step. Certain exchange rules still have to be changed and the new traders have to be found, trained and approved by the exchange.

"We think that we could start with the new system by the fall, which isn't so far away," he said Thursday. "Certainly, it will be in operation by the end of the year."

The new traders also must act as market makers on the floor Louise Le Bel-Chevalier, secretary to the QSC, said in a statement that market makers should contribute towards a more efficient market, reducing the spread between bids and offers and stablizing the movement of prices.

Market makers will compete with one another and be obliged to specialize in a given number of stocks. They will clear through other members but will not have to meet the same capital requirements as other members, the statement said.

BOOK CLUB AND TIME TO MERGE

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Agreement has been reached in principle to merge the Book-of-the-Month Club (BOMC) with Time Inc., the two companies announced Tuesday.

Under the proposed merger, BOMC shareholders will have a choice of receiving $30 cash or one share in Time Inc. preferred convertible stock for each common share of BOMC.

Time said the proposed merger is subject to a definitive agreement and approval by the boards and shareholders of both companies.

After the transaction is completed, BOMC would become a wholly-owned Time unit, the company said. About 37 per cent of the 2.1 million outstanding BOMC common shares are owned by the Scherman Foundation Inc.

BOMC was founded in 1926 and over the years absorbed other book clubs. It also distributes products such as records and graphic art to members.

AUTO FIRMS SET A JUNE RECORD

DETROIT (UPI) — June was a record month in all respects for Detroit and foreign automakers as Americans in a buying mood pushed new car sales above the 1 million mark for a fourth straight month.

Pointing out the strengthening U.S. economy, Americans bought 5.8 million new cars in the first six months of 1977. Industry executives are predicting the year will go down as the second best ever, just missing the 11.4 million cars sold in 1973.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Judge William Ostler cleared 27-year-old Rodney Christopher Gittens, of 642 Agnes, who stood five feet three inches tall.

Gittens was charged following a Feb. 28 incident at Gold Safe and Office Equipment Ltd., 827a Fort Street, during which Douglas Garland was struck in the left eye.

Court was told the two men had been business partners at the furniture store but became embroiled in a business dispute which culminated with events of Feb. 28.

Gittens, under questioning by defence lawyer Michael O'Connor, said Garland met him in the parking lot that morning and followed him into the store, where Garland demanded a stock-taking and the keys to the store. Gittens said he refused and asked Garland to leave, walking to the small office in the back to use the telephone.

Gittens said Garland followed him and began pushing him. Garland came back a second time and began to push, Gittens said, and blocked Gittens' exit from the office. It was at that time that Gittens hit Garland who rushed out of the store and went to the Victoria city police station to report the incident.

Gittens also said that he and another man, Darcy McGregor, had negotiated with Garland for $5,000 worth of shares in the business early this year but that the negotiations had fallen through.

In summing up the defence's case, O'Connor said that the force applied was justified to prevent an assault by the bigger man and as a defence of real property. He reminded Ostler that his client, Gittens, had possession of the keys for the business. O'Connor also suggested Garland committed assault and assault by trespassing.

Crown counsel N. K. Varma argued that, as owner of the business, Garland demanded the stock-taking. He said there was evidence of the breakdown of negotiations in the sale of the business shares.

"Where's the defence to hit a man in the eye?" Varma asked.

Ostler, in making his decision, said the altercation arose out of a business transaction which went sour for some reason. He noted that Garland had had nothing to do with the day-to-day affairs of the business for some time and that the question was that of possession of real property as well as defence of real property. Ostler said that although Garland was the owner, Gittens was in charge of the business and in peaceable possession of the real property.

He said Garland was almost twice as heavy as Gittens and ruled that Gittens "flailed his arms about and, unfortunately, struck Garland in the eye."

Two men charged with the theft of $3,300 worth of items from Zeller's were remanded until next Monday for election on charges of theft over $200 and possession of stolen property.

William Edward Perry, 20, of 3868 Shelbourne, and Stephen Barclay Wilcock, 21, of HMCS Provider, were charged with theft and possession of clothing, cameras, tools, records, film, radios and turntables from the department store. Perry, who was employed by the store, is also charged separately with the theft of a television set valued over $200.

Two brothers charged with the Saturday break-in of the Gorge Vale Golf Club were remanded in custody until today for a bail hearing and election of trial method.

Samuel Taylor Karaim, 23, and Charles William Karaim, 24, both of 660 Cowper, were charged with breaking and entering.

William Anthony Thistle was released on his own recognizance in the sum of $2,000 but was ordered by Judge Fred Green to abstain from alcohol while the case was before the courts.

The 25-year-old man is charged jointly with two 24-year-olds with theft over $200 (two counts) and breaking and entering in connection with an incident Thursday morning at the Oak Bay Marina.

Thistle is charged with Timothy Arthur Soutiere and Harvey Mark McLeod with theft of the 60-foot cabin cruiser Mahola-Nui and a rubber Zodiac raft and breaking into the luxury vessel.

Soutiere and McLeod were released Friday to appear this Friday for election, but Thistle was remanded in custody for a bail hearing.

A no-publication order on the bail proceedings asked for by legal aid lawyer Lenore Boyes was granted by Green.

Richmond Given Drainage Grant

The provincial government has announced the granting of $1.5 million and the lending of $4.2 million to Richmond "to alleviate very serious drainage problems."

The ministry of environment said in a news release the municipality must match the grant.

The total drainage program will affect more than 10,000 houses during the next 10 years, the ministry said.

Socred Urges Transit Action In Vancouver

A Social Credit backbencher urged the provincial government Monday to stop doing studies and get started on providing rapid transit on the Lower Mainlandk.

"The people on the Lower Mainland do not want any more studies, they want action," Gerry Strongman (Vancouver South) told the legislature during debate on budget estimates of Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis, the minister responsible for transit.

He said if work does not begin shortly, "Vancouver will choke to death."

Socred's Job Appointment Is Legal Says McCarthy

Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy has denied there was any wrong-doing involved in the giving of a government job to a former candidate for the presidency of the Social Credit party.

Eileen Dailly (NDP—Burnaby-North) said Thursday that when Diane Hartwick was appointed executive assistant to McCarthy in August, 1976, her appointment was never recorded in the quarterly B.C. Gazette, as required by law.

Dailly also said that because Hartwick's primary duties are to be in the ministry of human resources, the job should have been up for public tender, rather than being awarded through order-in-council.

McCarthy said there was nothing illegal about the method of appointment.

FARMING TALKS

Provincial ministers met here Monday for a three-day conference on provincial and national agriculture problems.

The ministers said in a news release that the discussions dealt with several topics including supply management and quota values, the future of the family farm, hog export programs, agricultural research, amendments to the federal Combines Investigations Act, and provincial attitudes on the recent levy on fluid milk imposed by the Canadian Dairy Commission.

No concensus was reached in preliminary discussions but the ministers agreed to pursue the fluid milk levy with federal Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan, the release said.

The ministers also agreed to exchange information on administration of quotas to promote efficient operation of marketing boards. The meetings are closed to the news media and public. The ministers met today with federal agriculture officials.

Are you still smoking?

We're not telling you anything you don't know when we acknowledge that a controversy about smoking exists.

And since we're in the business of selling cigarettes, you obviously know where we stand.

If you don't smoke, we're not about to persuade you to start. But if you do, we'd like to persuade you to try a cigarette you'll like more than the one you're smoking now.

We mean Vantage, of course.

Vantage gives you the flavour of a full-flavour cigarette. It gives you all the flavour you want in a cigarette with a lot less of what you don't want.

That's a simple statement of truth.

We don't want you to misunderstand us. There are some cigarettes that filter out more than Vantage does, but you probably won't enjoy smoking them.

The way we see it, a cigarette that doesn't draw easily just isn't worth smoking.

If you agree with us, we think you'll enjoy Vantage.

Canadian Shooters in Good Shape After Opening Rounds at Bisley

BISLEY, England (CP) — The Canadian Forces rifle team scored well during opening rounds of the National Rifle Association meeting Monday and, while they didn't win any championships, put themselves in good position for the future.

Lt. Walter Watkins of Ste. Foy, Que., non-shooting team captain, said after first-day firing that "this team is so well-trained that they can do whatever they set out to do."

"They had a few individual successes on the first day, but the real benefit will come when we total up the individual competitions to put in the claim cards for the team awards later."

Sgt. Laval Mercier of Neufchatel, Que., former Canadian army champion, came closest to taking one of the major trophies, the Senior Service challenge cup, in the standing competition.

Five hundred competitors fired 10 shots at 100 yards in a test of combat shooting. Sgt. Mercier was one of only three who put all 10 shots into the bullseye for the maximum 50 points.

In the re-shoot, he scored 47 and came second to Sgt. John Chapman, a Royal Marines commando, who shot 49.

Cpl. Emil Magnan of Loretteville, Que., scored a 48 in the regular round, as did Cpl Terry Mackey of Ottawa, only Canadian navy man on the team.

Mackey also was joint runnerup, with 34 out of a possible 35, in the Bisley Bullet challenge cup event—seven shots deliberate fire at 200 yards.

The event was won by John Silver, Bristol University cadet, with a perfect 35. Sgt. Mercier with 33 and WO Bob Labrecque of Valcartier Village, Que., and Cpl. Dan Demeuse of Courceltte, Que., both with 32, were also high up.

WO Jacques Dugas of Neufchatel, who has been to Bisley before with both national and forces teams, scored 49 out of 50 in the sitting competition and was a single point behind the nine British competitors who tied with perfect scores.

Dugas said later he is hoping for trophies to come from the aggregates.

"All our competitors are putting up good average scores," he said. "Regardless of the placing this gives in the individual event, we are hoping to benefit when the claim cards go in for the aggregates."

The Sox Love It Hot

By The Associated Press

Hot and humid weather turned the first-place Boston Red Sox and Chicago White Sox into sweat Sox on Monday night but neither winning pitcher was heard to complain.

"It was so hot and humid out there I'm exhausted, but I feel great," Bob Stanley said after hurling Boston to a five-hit 2-1 American League baseball triumph over Cleveland Indians.

"Hot weather, I love it; you can sweat and relax," said Chicago's Francisco Barrios, a six-hit, 10-strikeout 4-2 victor over Kansas City Royals.

Elsewhere in the American League, California Angeles made Dave Garcia's managerial debut a success with a late rally that produced a 6-5 10-inning triumph over Minnesota Twins, Baltimore Orioles edged New York Yankees 4-3, Detroit Tigers outslugged Toronto Blue Jays 9-7 and Oakland A's whipped Seattle Mariners 8-1.

The only run Cleveland managed off Stanley was Andre Thornton's fifth-inning homer. But by then, the Red Sox had given the rookie all the support he needed with a run in the second inning on Butch Hobson's double and Denny Doyle's single and another in the fourth on singles by Carl Yastrzemski, Carlton Fisk and George Scott.

The triumph kept the Red Sox one-half game ahead of Baltimore in the AL East, with the Yankees dropping 1½ back. In the West Division, the surprising White Sox lead Minnesota by 4½ games and Kansas City by five.

Rookie Eddie Murray, a hero against New York all season with four game-winning hits, singled home the tying run in the seventh inning and the winning run in the ..th to give the streaking Orioles their third consecutive victory over the Yankees. Murray's one-out single over a drawn-in outfield came after the Yankees loaded the bases on two intentional walks following Al Bumbry's leadoff triple.

In the National League, Houston's J. R. Richard outduelled Cincinnati's Fred Norman as Richard gave up five hits and retired 18 of the last 21 Cincinnati batters to lead the Astros to a 2-0 win over the Reds. Richard also singled to lead off the sixth inning and scored the Astros first run.

In other National League games, Montreal Expos downed Pittsburgh Pirates 4-2 and San Francisco Giants defeated San Diego Padres 5-1.

Moretti Pitches Movers' Victory

Roy Moretti struck out 14 batters while pitching Greaves Movers to an 8-4 decision over Victoria Firefighters Senior Babe Ruth League All-Stars in an interlocking baseball game Monday night at Lambrick Park.

The win moved Greaves into a tie for second place with Kubicek A's in the Victoria Senior Amateur League.

Jim Pickering bashed out three singles, and scored twice while Frank Woods hit two singles, scored twice and drove in one run to back Moretti.

Greaves Movers 012 311 x— 8 10 2

George Fritz, Rick Shenton (4) and Ross Coopar; Roy Moretti (8-4) and Len Jones.

ISLAND HOCKEY REP TEAM NAMED

Mike Paget will be the only member of Vancouver Island Selects to have any experience against the Dutch national team when the two sides clash in an exhibition men's field hockey match Thursday at Royal Athletic Park.

England Near Test Win

MANCHESTER, England (Reuter) — Australian captain Greg Chappell scored a century Monday but his effort was almost certainly in vain as England closed remorselessly on victory in the second cricket Test.

At the close of the fourth day, England, needing 79 runs to go one up in the five-match series, were eight for no wicket in its second inning and it seemed only the weather could rescue Australia.

To save the match, Australia needed resolute batting after it had captured England's last first-innings wicket Monday for the addition of one run. England was all out for 437, a lead of 140.

However, on a pitch that was taking some spin, one Australian after another threw his wicket away and only Chappell, who made 112 in four hours 41 minutes, gave England any cause for worry.

LIONS HOME TO STAMPS

CFL Openers Tonight

The Canadian Press

Saskatchewan coach Jim Eddy watched his Roughriders suffer four straight preseason losses but Monday night he cautioned anyone against using those games as a scale upon which to measure the defending Western Football Conference champions.

"That 0-4 record doesn't concern me," the Riders new head coach told a news conference. "The only time I was concerned was that fourth quarter against Edmonton when our first unit was in and we got ourselves in trouble.

"But in all the other quarters the first unit played I felt they were right on schedule."

With that assestment, Eddy is confident the Roughriders will open the WFC season tonight in Winnipeg with a victory against the Blue Bombers who won all four of their pre-season games.

The conference also has action at Empire Stadium in Vancouver where British Columbia Lions and Calgary Stampeders, last year's also-rans, hope to start things off on the right foot.

Eddy has an almost stand-pat offence with Rhett Dawson the only starter missing from last season. He's being replaced tonight by Leif Petterson.

Otherwise, quarterback and offensive co-ordinator Ron Lancaster has a host of familiar figures to work with. And, hints Eddy, the veteran signal-caller has "added a few new wrinkles."

Against the Bombers they face one of the most potent offences in Canada directed by a couple of young, strong-armed quarterbacks, Ralph Brock and Harry Knight.

Brock is scheduled to start tonight but coach Bud Riley has indicated that while he went almost exclusively with Brock last season, Knight will probably see a lot more action this season.

The Bombers have only one new starter on defence—rookie Canadian Lyall Woznesenky at end—and two on offence—wide receiver Joey Walters and guard Gary Khahn.

"I can't find a weak spot on that team," said Eddy of the Winnipeg team that finished second last season with 20 points, two behind Saskatchewan.

At Vancouver Jack Gotta makes his return to Canadian football as coach of the Stampeders. But his job got even tougher before the season even started.

Rookie import wide receiver Willie Armstead, a speedster who was one of the Stampeders' more impressive players in preseason, suffered a broken bone in his right foot when he tripped during practice Sunday.

John Hufnagel, the National Football League reject who sparkled and brought life to the Stampeders when he joined them midway through last season, will again be at quarterback.

And he'll be facing another former NFL quarterback, Jerry Tagge who will start for the Lions providing his rib injury has recovered sufficiently.

"I think Jerry will be ready to play, but we'll have to wait until after the warmups," said head coach Vic Rapp of the Lions. "He threw well in practice on the weekend, although he still suffers some pain from the injury."

Gary Keithley, another NFL refugee, would start if Tagge can't, with wide receiver John Sciarra capable of playing quarterback as well.

Rapp says the Lions have improved both offensively and defensively, but they are missing four starters from last year's tough defence — ends Bill Baker and Wayne Smith, middle linebacker Ray Nettles and corner Barry Ardern — which may make them vulnerable.

Tonight's WFC games will not be televised.

In Trouble Already?

HAMILTON (CP) — Toronto Argonauts head coach Leo Cahill returns to the scene of his demise tonight when he leads his troops into battle against Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the season-opening Eastern Football Conference game for both clubs.

Five years ago Cahill was fired as Argos head coach after Toronto lost in its final game of the 1972 season, played against the Ticats at Ivor Wynne Stadium.

That loss gave Cahill's team a 3-11 won-loss record, good for a last-place finish in the EFC. The basement didn't agree with then Argo owner John Bassett and he dumped Cahill.

Cahill would like nothing ter than to return a winner.

However, when he walks on to the field tonight he will be leading a Toronto team already hurting because of injuries.

Missing from the starting lineup will be two regular defensive linemen, rover Ike Thomas and one key offensive lineman. Defensive end Jim Corrigall is out with an ankle injury as is offensive tackle Nick Bastaja. Also missing will be defensive tackle Granville Liggins.

"We're going to have to go into Hamilton and because of all our injuries, we're going to have to hope to steal one," Cahill said.

PHILLIPS TO TRY EXPANDING LEAD

Larry Phillips of Springfield, Mo., will attempt to bolster his lead while competing events three and four of the seven-race International Drivers Challenge for super-stocks Tuesday and Thursday at Western Speedway.

Phillips leads the series with 263 points and is followed by J. J. Zaffino of Tacoma (237), Ron Eaton of Tacoma (230), Roy Haslam of Victoria (218) and Roy Smith of Victoria (216).

Time Trials are at 7 p.m. with racing set to begin at 8 each day.

Smythe in Semis

Third-seeded Peter Smythe, the Oak Bay champion, tripped Tino Markkanen 6-3, 6-1 Monday at the Racquet Club of Victoria to reach the semi-finals of the men's singles competition in the annual Victoria tennis championships.

In another match, seventh-seeded Greg Miller eased past Don Martin 4-6, 6-2, 6-3 and will meet top-ranked Ian Brady in the quarter-finals.

Brady and Russ Hartley advanced to the semi-finals of the doubles competition with a 6-3, 6-1 decision over Markkanen and Gary Peddle.

Meanwhile, Sandra Moss earned the final spot in the women's semi-finals with a 7-6, 6-4, 6-2 victory over Agnes Szilos.

Play continues through Saturday.

'Caps Down Hawaii

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Whitecaps scored two early goals and then hung on for a 4-3 North American Soccer League victory over Team Hawaii before 12,473 fans Monday night.

Both teams played loose, wide-open soccer in the closing stages as five goals were scored in the final 13 minutes.

Tomsett Tops Shoot

Tomsett won the over-all title with a score of 1,712 out of a possible 1,800. Clubmate Quinton Mar was second with 1,704 and Don Stevenson of Vancouver Police was third with 1,680.

Coast Marksmen of Vancouver won the club aggregate crown and PCRA came second. In the police division, Vancouver was first and the host club was second.

GORDON HEAD TEAMS SCORE OPENING WINS

DAWSON CREEK—Both Gordon Head squads collected victories here Monday as play opened in the British Columbia Girls' Little League softball championships.

Laury Grimston led Colony to victory by scoring once and driving in two runs with a triple and a single.

At Sanscha Park, Doug Harrison smacked a two-run double and Dale Ewasiuk singled him home in the top of the 10th inning to give Seaboard Properties a 3-0 decision over KOA Kampgrounds in Sidney Men's League play.

In New Westminster at the weekend, Victoria Athletics of the Stuffy McGinnis Men's League won the Sapperon invitational tournament with a 3-0 final victory over Golden Nugget of the host city.

Wins Swedish Title

BAASTAD, Sweden (AP) — Corrado Barazzutti won the men's singles title in the $75,000 Swedish Open tennis championships for the first time. The 24-year-old Italian Davis Cup player overcame a second-set lapse to beat Balasz Taroczy of Hungary 7-6, 6-7, 6-2 in a three-hour final.

$25,000 REWARD FOR STOLEN MARE

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — A $25,000 reward has been offered jointly by Claiborne Farm in Paris, Ky., and Canadian horseman Jean-Louis Levesque of Montreal in the latest effort to recover Levesque's stolen mare, Fanfreluche.

The 10-year-old mare, a former Canadian Horse of the Year, was in foal to 1973 Triple Crown winner Secretariat for two months at the time she disappeared June 25 from a remote pasture at sprawling Claiborne Farm.

Claiborne Farm owner Seth Hancock and Levesque are each putting up half of the reward money, which is "offered to the person or persons furnishing information leading to the apprehension and conviction of the person or persons responsible for stealing the thoroughbred mare Fanfreluche," Claiborne spokesman Jim Friess said Monday.

The FBI and state police launched an investigation into the theft, but reported no significant findings.

Friess said that Hancock and Levesque decided to put up the reward after the investigation failed to yield any leads.

Ready to Fold

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Indianapolis Racers were unable to get the needed financial commitment and will not make application for admission to the National Hockey League, signaling the end of the three-year-old World Hockey Association franchise, Indiana National Bank officials announced Monday.

"We had an interested investor," said David Givens, general counsel for the bank, creditor of the team's assets. "We talked with him this morning and he advised us he was not interested in further discussion.

"The one serious inquiry has seemed to disappear."

The Racers, members of the WHA for three years, needed about $8.3 million to clean up all debts and make entry payments to the NHL.

At least six WHA teams are expected to apply for membership in the NHL before the June 13 deadline.

"It appears there will be no application by the Racers (for an NHL franchise)" Givens told a news conference.

"I want to emphasize the word 'appears,' because lightning does strike every now and then. But there is now no one on the horizon to rescue the team."

Tendrils Still Spreading From Phenomenal Roots

LOS ANGELES — Six months ago Roots held the U.S. enthralled for eight days.

Prime-time television, public libraries and Alex Haley won't ever be the same.

The 12-hour mini-series, from Haley's book on his slave ancestors, not only made television history but senatorical respositories have been swamped since January by people tracing their own origins.

The National Archives in Washington and its branches report a huge increase in people searching through old census records for their ancestors. The number of black people visiting the archives has tripled.

"It took a while to build up the public momentum because we told them do some homework first," said Tom Daniels, a spokesman for the library of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Salt Lake City, Utah, the largest genealogical library in the world.

"Just before Roots we were serving about 2,000 people a day. The first week of April in one day we counted 3,700. We figure a 50-per-cent increase since then — and it hasn't tapered off yet."

A sequel, covering the second hundred years of Haley's book, is now being prepared for the 1978-79 season by ABC.

Roots will also have a tremendous impact on television viewing for years to come. It along with Rich Man, Poor Man the year before, paved the way for the mini-series.

But the most profound effect has been on its author.

Haley had labored for 55 years in total obscurity, including 20 years in the U.S. Coast Guard. Then he became an instant celebrity and a millionaire. Since the series and publication of the book he has been constantly on the lecture circuit.

"At this moment I have 802 requests for me to speak somewhere," he said. "You obviously can't do that, even if you take just the high-priority ones."

Haley said he planned to cut off his speaking engagements on July 15 and go back to writing My Search for Roots and working on material for the series sequel.

"It is a fact that my biggest single concern with all this success, quote, unquote, is that I am unable to write," he said.

"I haven't written a sentence since Roots. I ache to write again.

He said he could not possibly have anticipated the reaction to Roots. "I couldn't possibly have dreamed it if I had been on hashish."

He said he was sustained during the 12 years of research and writing — when he was "broke, broke, broke" — by feelings he described as spiritual.

"I'm pretty church oriented," Haley said. "I would feel a sense of being a participant in a living drama while writing and researching Roots.

"For instance, I'd been searching for weeks for a little fact and I was convinced it wouldn't be found. I was in London and ready to leave the public records office. I reached up for one final book. I didn't find what I was looking for but it did lead me to the source I needed. That was a spiritual experience."

NOT WELCOME . . .

DICKINSON, Tex. — A French Roman Catholic archbishop who has openly defied the Vatican has been declared "persona non grata" in the predominantly Catholic nation of Mexico. Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre, leader of a traditionalist movement which has been banned by Pope Paul VI, had hoped to visit Mexican supporters of his movement in the next few days. He was in Texas during the weekend to dedicate Queen of Angels chapel as the North American headquarters of his Society of St. Pius X. Late Sunday the Mexican State Department denied Lefebvre permission to enter Mexico but did not give a reason for the action.

STREET THEATRE CLAMPS

TORONTO — The life has gone out of the sumer street theatre in Yorkville Village.

Mime artists, one-man theatres, guitarists and string quartets have found they are no longer welcome.

The Village of Yorkville Association met last week and asked police to enforce city bylaws preventing obstruction of sidewalks and boulevards.

Tenants and owners of the 75 stores in Yorkville, a tourist area in the central part of the city, sent letters to police saying any street vendor or performer using their property was trespassing.

John Combs, president of the association, said an architect has been asked to design an old-fashioned bandstand, "complete with gingerbread," to house performers in a small park in the village.

To Combs, the street artists attracted the wrong sort of person to Yorkville, hassled tourists, insulted women and caused trouble.

David Anderson a regular performer in Yorkville, has a different view.

"We're committed to performing on the highways and byways of Toronto, where you get the best audiences in the world and there is no discrimination of race, creed or class," he said.

FACE BEHIND THE WEB is that of Hollywood actor Nick Hammond who will play masked superhero Spiderman in forthcoming series for CBS. Plans for the series—and its star—were unveiled Monday at meeting atop Empire State Building in New York City.

Carter's the Greatest, Beauty Queens Claim

ATHENS — An Athens court and the Orthodox Church of Greece have granted a divorce to Christina Onassis, the principal heiress to the fortune of shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis, and Alexandros Andreadis, sources close to both families reported today. The couple was married two years ago in Athens, a few months after Onassis died in March, 1975. They were officially separated last October and both petitioned for the divorce. Family sources said the couple had decided against petitioning for any property settlement since both had kept their business enterprises under their own names.

LOS ANGELES — The husband and wife singing act of Ike and Tina Turner were sued by Temple University Monday. The Philadelphia university brought an action in Superior Court asking $108,700 in damages, charging the Turners "suddenly and unilaterally" cancelled a contract concert just two days before they were to appear at the university's summer music festival last August.

GREENSBURG, Pa. — "You're not going to believe this," said the startled gas station attendant. "But someone just walked by carrying a cross." That someone was Jim Miller, 32, a slender, bearded resident of Fort Wayne, Ind., who took to the road seven weeks ago on a "spiritual journey" with no particular destination. What sets him apart from other roadside nomads is the 100-pound, 12-foot wooden cross that he carries on his shoulder. "This is just my way of getting off the clock and slowing down," he said as he walked.

Gov't in Contempt Over VRB, Gibson Charges

The Vancouver Resources Board is being dismantled by the government, before legislation incorporating the board into the ministry of human resources has been passed by the legislature, Liberal leader Gordon Gibson charged Monday.

Gibson told the house the government has made several moves in anticipation of the passage of the legislation, and as such, his privileges as an MLA are being breached.

He said, the government is in clear contempt of the legislature. Gibson asked Speaker Ed Smith to rule on the matter and said he would like to see it sent to committee for further investigation. Smith reserved decision.

Gibson said VRB officials received a letter Monday from deputy minister of human resources, John Noble, advising that the government was placing spending restrictions on the board.

"That letter advised the resources board that henceforth, certain restrictions would be put on their activities, pending passage of the bill, such as specific approval of the deputy minister being required for payments of $5,000 or over, any matters requiring approval of the board, and legal services," said Gibson.

"It is my opinion that this action by the deputy minister takes passage of Bill 65 by the legislature for granted, and therefore is a contempt of the legislature, either by the deputy, or by the minister, if the deputy was acting under instruction."

Noble, however, said Monday the VRB asked him for the guidelines that lead to Gibson's charge of contempt.

Noble said the board was concerned it would have problems negotiating any contractual arrangements because the bill abolishing the VRB is retroactive to June 22.

The VRB sent a union collective agreement and a property release contract to Noble for counter-signature, he said.

"So not only did they request guidelines, they sent me contracts for counter-signing, not because they can't sign but because they were worried they might have contractual problems," Noble said.

Noble said he sent a letter to the VRB Monday to clarify his guidelines.

"I said that it was strictly in their discretion to follow the guidelines, reject them or offer alternatives. They were guidelines and they were asked for, they were not instructions."

Gibson also said that a public works official was measuring space in the VRB offices last week "under the assumption of a provincial takeover."

Tudor Look Backed

A planning consultant will be hired by Oak Bay to help council and the business community preserve the Tudor-style character of Oak Bay Avenue.

Zoning committee chairman Ald. John Goult said Monday he expects $2,000-$3,000 will be spent to assist the committee lay down a concept for future development of the village east of Foul Bay to Oliver.

"We just haven't been getting on with this as fast as we should," Goult told council.

"We need some help," added Ald. Shirley Dowell.

Goult said the engineer-planner and his staff had been too busy with other matters to devote the required time to the village concept.

He said it is desirable to maintain basically the type of development that has existed in the village over the years, principally small shops, and to preserve the character preferred by residents in that area.

Among the factors to be considered are new building design, height limitation, traffic and parking facilities.

HELP SOUGHT IN SHOOTING

Esquimalt detectives today appealed for help in locating two men who shot a 46-year-old man opposite the Halfway House beer parlor Saturday night.

Sgt. Doug Sproxton said it is inconceivable to him that nobody witnessed the incident, given the place and the time, around midnight.

"Someone must have seen more than has been reported," Sproxton said.

Robert Loiseau was shot once in the back as he walked on the sidewalk approaching his apartment at 841 Esquimalt. He is in fair condition in hospital.

An unidentified woman companion told police two men ran east along Esquimalt Road towards the city after the shooting.

She described the men as in their 20s with long, dark hair.

Sproxton said only one shot was fired. Tests are under way to determine the make and calibre of weapon used. It is believed to have been a .38-calibre revolver.

Anyone with information is asked to contact Sproxton at 385-1441.

Council's finance, legislative and health committee decided Monday to recommend that a fee of $15 be set for the first impoundment of a dog. The second time it will cost the owner $25, the third time the fee will be $50 and the fourth, $100.

At present the fees are $10, $15, $20 and $25 respectively.

Ald. Ian Cass pointed out the increased fees are needed as a deterrent.

"We didn't want to be punitive on the first offences. It's the repeat offenders who should be dealt with more strongly," he said.

To Ald. Joe Bourque's question on whether the increased fees would help defray pound costs, Ald. David Paterson reported the municipality's budget allows for $12,000 in revenue from pound fees while operating costs are expected to be $59,350.

Gorge Plan In Limbo

Esquimalt council's planning committee Monday wasn't too enthusiastic over a proposal by the Gorge Vale golf club to redevelop the clubhouse at Craigflower and Tillicum.

Club president K. G. Stewart wrote to council saying a commercial development on the site would enable the club to build a new clubhouse without raising the fees of the largely "workingman's club."

But aldermen on the committee suggested there is already too much traffic at that intersection without a commercial development at the corner.

The committee, however agreed to more talks with club officials and municipal engineeer M. H. Campbell will prepare a report on the request.

CRTC Changes The Rules

A shift in ground rules for applicants and intervenors in broadcasting licences has been made by Canadian Radio-Television Telecommunications Commission.

Lead time before a public hearing has been extended from 35 to 50 days in the case of applications coming before the commission and the number of public announcements to be broadcast by a licensee doubled to four.

Objectors to a licence application must intervene at least 20 days, instead of 15, before the public hearing, and an extra day is allowed (four) for serving documents required by registered mail.

Only one copy of an intervention will be required by the commission.

Saanich Eyeing 'Sniffer' Law

Saanich could be the first municipality in British Columbia to demand that buildings with sleeping accommodation, other than private homes, have smoke detection devices installed.

Council's fire committee decided Monday to ask municipal solicitor Doug Patterson if a bylaw can be drawn up requiring installation of the detection devices.

The move was prompted by Ald. Joe Bourque. He said the devices should be required in all new hotels, rental apartments, rooming or boarding houses, hospitals, boarding schools and clinics. The requirement, he said, could also apply to fire stations, youth and adult hostelries, and radio and television stations where sleeping accommodation is provided.

The council has already agreed to submit a resolution to the Union of B.C. Municipalities asking support from other municipalities in getting the National Building Code amended and the provincial fire marshal's regulations changed.

But Ald. David Paterson cautioned Monday that, even if Saanich gets UBCM support, it could take a long time before any provincial action is initiated.

Fire chief Harold Gains said all provincial fire chiefs are in favor of the move as well as the Canadian fire marshall.

He said he had spoken with the deputy provincial fire marshal, who also favors such regulations.

"We need a bylaw to close the gap until the provincial government does take action," he said.

Bourque said he has spoken to about a dozen contractors who agree installations would not be overly expensive and would add to the safety of their buildings.

"Other cities find it necessary . . . and valuable," Bourque said.

Hydro Arrow Dam Compensation Plea

NAKUSP (CP) — Villages around the Upper and Lower Arrow Lakes in southeast British Columbia want lower taxes plus compensation for low lake levels caused by B.C. Hyydro damming, Nakusp Mayor Ernie Harding said Monday.

Harding's comments come after Central Kootenay Regional District voted Saturday to support the communities' claims for lower taxes. They will meet with Hydro Wednesday.

Lake levels drop by up to 40 feet when water is drawn off at Hydro's Hugh Keenleyside Dam on the south end of the Lower Arrow at Castlegar, 50 miles south of here.

When the water levels drop, thousands of acres of mud and stumps are exposed and after drying out, dust storms blow as far north as Revelstoke, 30 miles from the north end of the Upper Arrow and 55 miles north of here.

Parts of Nakusp, normally situated beside the Upper Arrow, are now one-quarter of a mile from the water. The situation is similar at other lakeside villages of Burton, Fauquier and Edgewood.

Water is often released for use along the Columbia River in the United States. Hydro will be paid about $26 million by the U.S. this summer for 15 million acre feet of water.

The tourist industry has been hit badly by the lower levels, said Harding. Visitors bring their boats to the valley but leave after finding launch ramps hundreds of yards from the lakes.

"And the water is going to get even lower again," he said. "They have pulled the plug at Castlegar."

He said local communities have been trying to promote tourism, but have little chance with the lakes in their present condition.

"They have got to realize the damage they have done to this valley, and we have to ask for compensation," said Harding.

Harding criticized the Columbia River Treaty between Canada and the United States for the damage done to the lakes.

"They (Hydro) took advantage of the people here when they first came in with the Columbia treaty," he said. "They could make all the promises they wanted then, because they knew all those people were going to be displaced."

Harding said Hydro promised new launching facilities, wharves and beaches that could be used at low water as well as the normal high level, but said none have been built.

He said Hydro should either restore the water level or build new boat ramps and beaches that could also be used when the water drops.

POST OFFICE BOMB SCARE

An RCMP spokesman said police evacuated the main Surrey post office where a night shift was working, but all other post offices were empty.

The search turned up nothing and police said they are treating the incident as a crank call.

UFAWA Chiefs Face Charges

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jack Nichol, president of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union, and past president Homer Stevens are among seven persons charged under the Combines Investigation Act with impeding an inquiry.

The action Monday is the latest episode in a combines investigation that led to a search in January of newsrooms at the Sun and Province and of two television stations. During those searches film and reporters' notebooks and contact sheets were seized under a warant issued by a justice of the peace.

A British Colubia Supreme Court judgment June 28 ruled that the issuing of the warrant to Combines Act investigators was an abuse of the processes of the courts.

In an information filed in provincial court Monday, investigator Simon Wapniarski of Ottawa alleges that Stevens, Nichol, George Hewison, Bert Ogned, Walter Tickson, David McIntosh and Kenneth Robinson "between Dec. 4 and 9, 1976, in Vancouver, did unlawfully impede an inquiry uner the combines investigation act."

The charges arose when officers of the union demanded that the ingdiry into union operations which began last Dec. 6 be made public.

When combines department personnel refused and held the hearing in camera, the union allegedly refused to attend.

4½-Year Delay Would Kill Highway Pipe

WHITEHORSE (CP) — A proposed 4½ year delay in construction of the Alaska Highway pipeline would probably kill the project, Robert Blair, Foothills Pipe Lines Ltd. president, told the Lysyk inquiry Monday.

The Alaska Highway pipeline panel, a group of critics funded by Foothills but independent of the firm, says 4½ years are needed to plan the natural gas line, settle Indian land.

The airline claimed it is owned $29,000 in air ticket sales by the company.

3 Plead Guilty

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—Three Vancouver teen-agers pleaded guilty Monday to charges laid after a woman was thrown nude out of a van on the highway near here May 4.

Calvin William Ecles and Scott Bradley Hyggen, both 17, pleaded guilty to charges of intent to wound and unlawful confinement. Laurel Marie Carra, 17, pleaded guilty to gross indecency.

Youth Strangled

KEREMEOS (CP)—RCMP said Monday a youth found dead in a hay field near this Okanagan community last week had been strangled. Police said the unidentified youth, believed to be 15 or 16 years old, had been there for about three days.

Bakers Settle

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Bakery and Confectionary Workers International Union, Local 468, has ratified a new contract awarding its 500 members a 75-cent-an hour wage increase over one year, plus an additional 16 cents in fringe benefits.

The settlement amounts to 9.2 per cent—the basic six per cent increase allowed by the Anti-Inflation Board, two per cent for national productivity and 1.2 per cent covering past wage experience. The wage increase raises the baker's rate to $339.75 for a 35-hour work week.

Strike Favored

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—Outside employees of this central Interior city have voted 91 per cent in favor of strike action.

The employees, members of Local 399, Canadian Union of Public Employees, have been without a contract since Dec. 31, 1976. Their basic pay rate is $5.83 an hour.

Release Criticized

VANCOUVER (CP)—The recent release of information on psychiatric patients to university researchers was a breach of confidentiality, says Dr. William McClure, registrar for the College of Physicians and Surgeons of B.C.

McClure was responding Sunday to a report last week that names and addresses of 250 former patients of New Westminster's Hollywood Hospital had been given to a University of B.C. research team to assess the need for an alcoholic treatment centre.

Anti-Nudist Battle Planned

VANCOUVER (CP) — Alderman Bernice Gerard said Monday that her weekend anti-nudist protest march on Wreck Beach was a success but it was just the first round in what might be a long and fiercely-founght battle.

Gerard said she's planning to meet Attorney-General Garde Gardom to discuss the issue and said she would seek support from city parks board members.

Gerard also hinted that future battle plans might include laying charges against beach nudists.

"I hope that should citizens take such action, the attorney-general takes note and doesn't try to avoid becoming involved — he must stand by his laws," she said.

Gerard, a fundamentalist pastor, has organized a group called Citizens for Integrity to combat a gradual advance by nude sunbathers from Wreck Beach isolated at the tip of point Grey toward Spanish Banks closer to the downtown area.

The organization, led by Gerard, marched through nudists Sunday to draw attention to the advance.

Residents Test Water for 2,4-D

VERNON (CP) — The Okanagan Environmental Coalition began testing water at Skaha Lake Monday for residue of the herbicide 2,4-D being used as part of a provincial government program to rid the lake of Eurasian milfoil weed.

Tina Kramer, spokesman for the Coalition, said Sunday that the group will double-check the government's tests of drinking water by sending samples gathered from the intake pipes of homes to a lab being set up in Vancouver through the Environmental Law Association. Samples also will be sent to a provincial government lab.

"We feel we don't trust the government anymore," said Kramer.

She said many people lost faith in the government when their protests were ignored and provincial biologists were allowed to use 2,4-D in the Okanagan basin.

Kramer said some people have begun hauling water from 12 miles away rather than use the lake's water.

She said the group has written to Environment Minister Jim Nielsen and Health Minister Bob McClelland requesting that government data be released through Dr. David Clarke, the medical health officer for South Okanagan Union Board of Health who is known to oppose use of the herbicide.

Postal Sleuths Somehow Manage

To Deliver Letters Addressed Like This:

Smith, McKenzie, Victoria

By AB KENT
Times Staff

When Susy Smith received a postcard from a school chum holidaying in Acapulco she was amazed—not because her friend was in Mexico but because it would take a psychic to deliver anything with so skimpy an address.

The card was sent to:

Smith
McKenzie . . .
Victoria, B.C. . . .

There was no annotative information as is often found on poorly-addressed letters, stamped or handwritten by a postal worker to improve the chances of delivery.

To begin with there were no initials or first name to help identify the adressee in a city of more than 1,000 Smiths; there was no street number; no indication whether street or avenue; no country of destination; no postal code, and no return address.

But even for an innocuous greeting card, the post office takes pains to deliver.

A perceptive Mexican postal worker first of all got Susy's card into the Canada bag, having recognized the abbreviation for British Columbia which we take for granted.

Getting it to Victoria was no trouble after that, but when it came up on the sorting table for breaking out according to district, the sorter had to choose between the area in Saanich running west of the university, or the South Fairfield area in Victoria, or else send it to the directory department.

In the latter it was sure to be held up at least a day and cause someone extra work in pinpointing the home of the intended Smith.

But the sorter opted to try for McKenzie Ave., in Saanich, being 10 times the length of McKenzie St., in Victoria, and thus with the chance of more Smiths living on it.

The postcard was fired out to Postal Station A where one of the letter carriers for McKenzie Ave. received it, realized he had no Smiths on his walk, and passed it over to a colleague with the adjoining walk.

That man had three Smith residences to cover, so when he walked his route that day he asked who had friends holidaying in Acapulco. Sure enough—Susy was one of them, and recognized her chum's scrawl.

If the sorter had sent the card to South Fairfield first, the carrier on two-blocks-long McKenzie St. would have dealt with it the same way, and not finding the right Smith would have sent the postcard along to Station A with the annotation. "Try McKenzie Ave."

The illustration is fictitious, but similar situations occur many times daily in post offices everywhere.

And it casts a human light on a postal service that is becoming more impersonal with mechanization of mail handling systems.

The mailman, postie, postman or mail carrier — male and female—epitomize what public relations man Buz Sawyer calls "a people service."

There are just over 250 mail carriers in Greater Victoria, responsible for carrying letters, papers, magazines, small parcels and junk mail to some 85,000 addresses including capital area rural routes.

That some mail ever gets to its destination is a wonder. And that literally tons of other items never do get delivered is soon appreciated in a visit to the Victoria mail processing plant's directory section at Royal Oak.

In the past week, for instance, the section received bundles of the Vancouver-based Western Living magazine, mailed to this area in bulk and not one of them with an address label.

There was a letter addressed simply: Victoria, British Columbia, Canada.

One of the four full-time directory employees opened the envelope in hopes of finding either the name of the sender or the addressee. Inside was an application for basic income rent assistance, but no name or address. Impossible to deliver.

Another letter bore the initials D. O. C., with the only address, Government St., Victoria, B.C.

A third envelope had only a kind of block letter doodle representing M-14 and the name Bill.

This, too, was opened and found to contain a Victoria Times bill and cheque for $300, which the directory addressed properly and returned to the mail stream.

The day we visited there was three-week-old mail waiting to be tackled, but the sleuths had been too busy to work it over, leaning heavily on phone books, city directory and instinct.

"It's an unproductive job, looking up dead mail," said Doug Anderson, acting area manager.

"We have a lot of problems," added Roy Davis, supervisor in charge of the directory section. "People can't write; we can't read. It's a slow, time-consuming job."

Whenever a qualified person can be sprung from the letter-sorting area he may be sent to help the directory section wade through the seemingly hopeless piles of poorly-addressed mail in all shapes and sizes, some with outdated addresses, some without any address.

A lot of the problems stem from mail-order promotions like film-processing, book clubs and Arizona real estate which use so-called sucker lists of potential buyers or subscribers purchased from a dealer who, in turn, may have obtained the names from motor-vehicle registrations.

The directory section also inherits items that fall out of parcels from which no wrapping is ever found.

They have wallets, birth certificates, social security cards, sunglasses, enough keys to stock a hotel, an automobile rear axle, a piece of machine steel, a film cartridge and a prescription of pills for some unknown who will never swallow them.

"Somebody will spend hours, maybe days trying to find just the right gift and maybe spend a lot of money, then go home, wrap it in tissue paper, throw it in the mail and wonder why it never gets delivered," Anderson marvelled.

Anderson recalls the time 50 $1 bills turned up in an envelope bearing only a girl's name and the note: "Thanks for services rendered."

Widespread use of postal codes will help change a lot of this, postal offficials hope. A letter with a name and postal code, but no other information, can be delivered anywhere in Canada as long as the person is known in his block, apartment or office building.

But even with the traditional system of addressing, astonishing as it may seem, 75 per cent of mis-addressed first-class mail gets through, with a much lower percentage for third-class material.

Anything left over eventually is sent to the B.C.-Yukon undeliverable mail office in Vancouver where it is held for ultimate destruction or, if merchandise, public auction.

Acting retail and delivery manager Al Bennett, who at one time had walked every route in the city, recalls a delivery problem that was saved by a small and resourceful lady in Esquimalt.

He had a registered letter for her neighbor and without thinking tossed it through the letter slot in his front door before realizing the man was away on extended vacation. Bennett either had to produce the letter or the addressee's signature when he returned to the post office. The house was locked up tight.

He mentioned his dilemma to the lady next door, who said she would solve it for him, and forthwith crawled through a rear window to get the letter back.

Bennett didn't ask how she knew the window would open.

The price to pay for filling out a reader interest poll card for Maclean's magazine appears to be about five cents an issue.

A Victoria subscriber, who moved recently, received two cards in the mail this week, one addressed to the old address and one to the new one.

The new address envelope said the reader's name had been chosen to serve on a panel to study reader interests. Poll cards were included as well as another saying as a co-operating panel member the reader is entitled to 22 more issues of Macleans for $8.

That works out to about 36 cents an issue, five cents more than the "best ever offer" contained in the second envelope sent to the old address.

The best offer for 32 issues, including two bonus issues, was $9.98, about 31 cents an issue.

However, the 36-cent offer also includes a "magnificent map of Canada" so maybe it is worth co-operating after all.

Oak Bay has joined the Provincial Emergency Program's marine rescue service and will have a 15-foot inflatable speedboat based in the municipality to respond to distress in offshore waters.

"The Royal Oak Bay Navy," remarked Mayor Brian Smith when the program was outlined to council Monday.

The craft will be trailer-mounted and will be available for training a dozen volunteers and remain on indefinite loan to Oak Bay, with all expenses covered by the provincial government.

Volunteer boat-owners may also be trained to respond to emergencies when required.

The June edition of Oregon's magazine Portland has a special appeal for Victorian seawatchers.

The picture was taken by Robert Frisbee, a crew member on board the Portland boat Celebration, which placed fifth in the race and was back in Victoria again this year to sail in the Swiftsure classic.

If Tim Gosley, younger son of the Smile Show's Jerry, ever sees another pair of scissors he'll probably take off fast.

That spectacularly beautiful scene curtain that everyone is talking about — and everyone including the Times reviewer thought was devised from aluminum foil — has surely given Tim a life-long complex about scissors, for it cost him agonizing hours, painful blisters and cramped fingers.

The curtain, which came close to upstaging everything else, is made of hundreds of feet of Mylar, a plastic material impregnated with reflective metal.

As assistant to his set-designing brother, Anton, Tim spent endless hours on a ladder, scissors in hand, cutting each of those strips on the 30-foot wide curtain from the stage floor to the fly gallery, a distance of 25 feet.

The switch to the four-sided litter bins from the circular variety is being made for a variety of reasons, one of them being to prevent drunks from rolling them down the street.

City engineer John Sansom said the old plastic ones were also frequently burned, something that won't happen with the new reinforced concrete bins with metal liners and lids.

The square bins, which cost about $200 each, are gradually replacing the old ones and the plan calls for 50 of them at downtown locations this year.

WOMAN'S BODY FOUND IN BUSH

The woman was found at 6 p.m. by a passer-by, off a beaten trail about 70 yards from a house on Atkins Road and about two miles from her home at 2787 Jacklin. The woman left her home May 25.

Colwood RCMP Staff-Sgt. Ted Foster said foul play is not suspected.

He said it appeared Mrs. Zarft walked into the bush, lay down and went to sleep. Her clothing was undisturbed and she had her coat tucked around her.

An autopsy is being carried out today to determine the cause of death.

Townhouse Plan Dropped After Residents Protest

Instead, the lands, planning and housing committee which consists of all council members decided to call a public hearing to have the 271 acres zoned for single-family homes.

At the suggestion of Ald. Mary Casilio, the minimum size lots will be 7,200 square feet.

Monday's decision means abandonment of a plan for the area which has been worked on for two years and which council earlier endorsed in principle.

The plan for the 271 acres would have seen 443 acres remain as open space. Of the remainder, 24.5 acres would have been for townhouse development at the rate of 10 units to the acre and the rest, single-family homes.

Mayor Ed Lum and aldermen warned the residents however, that single family zoning, if approved after the public hearing is held in August, does not preclude future councils from increasing the density allowed in that area.

Ald. David Paterson, while voting for the single-family zoning, said he would make sure that a larger sewer capacity is allowed.

Only Ald. Joe Bourque voted against the single-family zoning.

He pointed out the mix of townhouses and single-family homes, as recommended by the planning department, would have created 43 acres of open space while only 24½ acres would have been used for townhouses.

Bourque also warned that the provincial government is prepared to assist with the heavy costs of servicing but would require some multiple development.

Ald. Ian Cass, seconding Casilio's motion to zone the acreage for single-family homes, said there is a need for smaller homes on smaller lots.

"I've seen the situation go from bad to worse in the short time I've been on council," he said. "We're saying that everyone who isn't wealthy and can't afford a 2,000 foot home on an 8,000 foot lot must live in rental accommodation. We're barring them from owning a home. I don't think it's right."

Many of the residents who attended the meeting were at a public hearing in April when a bid to have the area zoned for single-family homes was defeated because of their opposition. After that public hearing they organized a 202-signature petition opposing the zoning of townhouses and single-family homes.

Spokesmen Monday said although they would rather see the area remain rural, the majority of residents will not oppose single-family homes.

Council also recommended that Richard Fatt, president of Fatt's Poultry Farm Ltd. which operates on eight acres in north Quadra, have his property placed in the Agricultural Land Reserve.

Aldermen said they will support his application to the Capital Region District.

Committee chairman Fred Severson assured Fatt that council will do all it can to ensure the farm remains in operation.

Fatt said he tried to buy a 150-foot strip on one side of his property for a buffer strip but the price asked was exorbitant. He asked the aldermen's help him in his eforts to get such a strip.

They're Fighting Mad About Lagoon Outfall

A groundswell of opposition is building to the issuance by the Pollution Control Branch of a permit to the Capital Region District for a 1,200-foot sewage outfall off Esquimalt Lagoon.

Branch director W. N. Venables said Monday the permit was granted because sewage problems at a nearby subdivision are causing a serious pollution and health hazard.

But opponents refer to the decision as "absolutely ridiculous" and an "overreaction to a minor problem."

The Albert Head Ratepayers Association, as well as environmental and concerned citizens groups, are preparing another assault on the government in hopes of reversing the decision.

Meanwhile, a pollution branch spokesman said today those opposed to the branch's decision can appeal to the Pollution Control Board within 15 days.

There was no public hearing, the spokesman said, because it was decided there was a definite health hazard and such action was necessary.

The battle has raged for nearly a year, ever since the CRB decided last September to solve a problem of sewage leaking from a 76-lot subdivision by pumping it through an outfall into the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

A permit was sought from the PCB but the first application was withdrawn and a new one submitted in December after objectors presented an 8,000-name petition opposing the scheme.

Another 8,000-name petition was submitted opposing the second application and nothing was heard until Monday.

Shirley Wilde, secretary of the Albert Head Ratepayers Association, sees the whole thing as a political decision designed to lock residents into the region's plans for an Albert Head outfall to serve Langford and Colwood.

She said there are only 18 houses in the problem area which are having sewage difficulties and, she added, they should have the responsibility of correcting their own disposal systems.

She questioned why there was never any public hearing, adding that now all environmental groups on Vancouver Island will join the fight against the project.

"The residents are going to have to decide whether they want fish or feces in the Strait of Juan de Fuca," she said.

Oak Bay Helps Academy Move

Oak Bay will assist — to the tune of about $20,000—the Victoria Riding Academy quit its 9-3-acre site on Cedar Hill Cross Road by Oct. 15.

Mayor Brian Smith said Monday the municipally-owned property adjoining Uplands Golf Club will be open for anything from high quality single family dwellings to low density apartment-condominium or recreational use.

"There is no chance of high-rises," he stressed following Oak Bay council meeting.

Smith said the future of the site — a subject of controversy in the past 15 years — will be decided in consultation with professional planners. The property is zoned for apartment use.

He said the property will be used in some way to help defray the mounting cost of running the municipality, particularly in recreation.

The assistance to Mr. and Mrs. Donald Carley to help them relocate elsewhere in the Greater Victoria area will cost Oak Bay about $20,000.

Some may argue that this amount is over-generous for a private club; Smith said, but not in the light of the Carley's contribution to recreation in the community.

"The Carleys will be missed in the municipality and we are aware young riders will find it more difficult. But the site is no longer suitable for a riding academy," Smith said.

The property was assessed as a going concern and taxes have risen to $9,000 a year, which is beyond the ability of the Carleys to pay year after year after year, the mayor said.

Council is prepared to forgive all 1977 taxes and because the academy will not be used for business after Oct. 15, there will be no taxes due in 1978, he said.

Rent also will be forgiven from Oct. 15 even though the Carleys may not complete their move until early in 1978.

For the move itself, council is willing to spend up to $5,000 in services or manpower, the mayor said.

Forgiving current taxes will mean $9,000 less in tax collections to the municipality and in addition, Oak Bay will have to pay the property's share of school taxes.

Smith said rent forgiveness is worth about $1,100 and the loss of taxes for the first quarter of 1978 will represent about $2,300.

OFF THE WALL

Louise DeGrave

I was thinking about romantic love nd how reality kills it and all.

It started when I recently came across a packet of love letters written to Ralph during our courtship. Absence may make the heart grow fonder, but it also makes the brain grow mushy.

The letters were all written to an individual referred to as "Lambie," whose name was inevitably preceded by a long list of adoring adjectives. The margins were elaborately decorated with arrow-struck hearts, flowers, musical notes, soaring birds, sad faces, assorted stick figures acting out scenes of future demestic bliss, poetic verse that always began with the line "Roses are red . . .," 2,300 X's labeled "kisses," and all manner of optimistic postcripts, including "I cannot imagine ever having another unhappy moment after we are married."

As far as the actual contents were concerned, Ralph's mother once found some of my letters to him and pronouced them "revolting." Infatuation may not inspire great prose in the 19-year-old mind, but you gotta love the enthusiasm. The medium and the margins were the message.

I'd almost forgotten that I used to call Ralph a lamb. My sister and I were both engaged at the same time and she referred to her intended as either a "cuddly bunny" or a "woolly bear."

"Sounds like a g-dd-m zoo around here," my father used to mutter when both swains were in residence. For her side, Mother admitted several years later that she nearly vomited every time she overheard Ralph saying goodnight to me.

I think it wore the folks down after a while. I remember when Ralph showed up at our house for our wedding and Dad answered the door. "It's Lambie-poo," he announced dryly.

At the time, neither my sister nor I could understand why the folks were so unhinged by our persistent tendency to animal similes. After all, even the Marine Corps used the. ("OK, you maggots, fall in.")

I've forgotten exactly when my husband made the metamorphosis from sheepdom to Ralphness but I think it was somewhere around the day he lost his car keys for the 57th time.

I also keep thinking about a letter to Ann Landers from a woman who was at odds with her husband because he kept leaving the toilet seat up and their five-year-old was always forgetting to look first and kept falling in. Once upon a time, before the kids and the mortgage and reality set in, she was probably 19 and wrote gushy letters to the guy. Now she writes letters to Ann Landers about toilet seats.

There are some things in life that are just too cruel.

Watching Strippers Can Make One Deaf family

BURNABY (CP) — When strippers take it all off to the roar of disco or the thunder of a live band, the trick is to keep your eyes open and your ears shut.

Sonic research conducted by Simon Fraser University has showed that some Vancouver-area entertainment spots have decibel levels that could damage hearing.

Sound-level statistics for 23 nightclubs, pubs and discos revealed decibel readings ranging from a relatively quiet 70 to a rocking 112, well above the 90-decivel level established by industry as the point at which ear protection is required if there is prolonged exposure.

The decibel scale is logarithmic, so an increase of 10 decibels indicates an increase in noise of nearly 300 per cent.

SFU's World Soundscape Project, which checked the same establishments last year, found the average increase in the past year to be 12 decibels or between 300 and 400 per cent.

Don Watson, a Workers' Compensation Board hygienist, and Larry Cakley, a federal government environmental health officer, said those most likely to be affected by over-amplified sound are the club, pub and lounge staff members.

A waiter or bartender exposed for eight hours a night to a decibel level of 112, the highest SFU rating, well might suffer hearing loss, they said.

Michael O'Flynn, a bartender at Gastown's Carleton Hotel pub, said the bands have a tendency to get carried away at times, but he has a way to deal with the situation.

"When the music gets so loud we can't hear the customers callin' for more beer, we tell the lads in the band to cool it a bit," he said.

The musicians run the greatest risks of hearing loss, said Watson, and the compensation board's files on such cases are growing.

The board monitors sound levels in clubs and pubs using small portable tape recorders that can be worn by nightclub staff members to record sound levels through an employee's entire shift.

Bob Reid, president of the Musician's Association, Local 145, said the problem is recognized, but the question of who has jurisdiction over sound levels — the musicians or the proprietors — still has not been resolved.

Harry Truax, research director of the SFU project, said the split between places with quiet background music, or none at all, and those with live bands is widening.

"The trend suggests that more people will continue to be exposed to higher levels for a greater part of the day," he added.

Marco Puharich, manager at the Waldorf Hotel, which had the lowest decibel rating of the SFU test, said noise builds up tension.

"We get an older crowd in our place," he said. "They just want a quiet drink, and the loudest noise we're likely to have is when we put the hockey games on TV."

Bill Bobbie, lounge manager at the King's Castle Show Lounge which features dancers, said the "girls like it, the customers like it and the waitresses and bartenders haven't complained."

"It's a fact that when the music volume and the tempo go up, customers drink more, relax more, enjoy themselves more. We get a lot of visiting firemen, fellows who've had a fight with their wives, tensed-up people. A string quartet just wouldn't do the job."

STORMY SEAS churn up quickly when small boys kick up their heels in the Beacon Hill Park wading pool. The model sailboat appears to be nearly foundering as Michael and Robbie Brown, 1346 Carnsew, and Craig Dales, 505 Cornwall, inject a little excitement into a quiet holiday afternoon. In a recent issue of our daily newspaper you said, "Replenishing emotional energy is just as important as seeking physical rest." Can you tell me how one goes about replenishing emotional energy? I've known for some time that this is important, but have no idea how to begin. — Mrs. J.H.A.

Dear Mrs. A.:

The stresses of modern living are many and varied. Some people are able to tolerate an enormous amount of emotional stress, while others cannot cope with the slightest degree of tension.

Consequently, there is no universal rule that will apply to all people. All of us know that an exhausting day, even without expending physical energy, can leave us "drained." The bombardment of telephone calls at the office, problems in the daily routine of housework, the demands made by children, their school, their illnesses, all can sap the strength even of those with limitless reserves.

I know from my personal experience that when the chores in the practice of medicine become overwhelming I simply walk away from all of them for a short period. A visit to a museum, a stroll in the park, sometimes a short nap or the indulgence of listening to a Beethoven sonata can refuel my emotional "battery."

This works for me. For others it might be watching a television show, or a little outdoor exercise.

It's important that each person inspect the areas of greatest tensions in their daily lives, and then make a specific attempt to avoid them or modify them.

If there is one basic rule to remember it is that a person's greatest productivity in the home, at the job or in the community occurs when the pressures of emotional tensions are at a minimum.

Scientist's Table Warns Drinkers

TORONTO (CP) — Jan De Lant, a senior scientist with the Ontario Addiction Research Foundation, has devised a table to tell drinkers when they have reached dangerous consumption levels.

Of the 4.6 million consumers of alcoholic beverages in 1973, about 350,000 drank a daily average of more than 10 centilitres of absolute alcohol or the equivalent of one quarter of a litre of whisky, six bottles of beer or one litre of table win, De Lint writes in the foundation publication Addictions.

He said the 350,000 account for 40 per cent of all sales in beer, wine and liquor stores, so two of every five customers are drinking what is considered to be a hazardous amount.

He suggests the tables be put in all provincial beer, wine and liquor stores to allow drinkers to work out their consumption in centilitres.

If they top a daily average of 10, the table refers them to information about health hazards and other problems related to heavy drinking.

To work out consumption levels in centilitres for beer or cider, for example, the weekly number of 12-oz. bottles would be multiplied by 1.7 and the number of glasses of beer would be multiplied by 1.1.

Water, Ice Standards Established

OTTAWA (CP) — The health and consumer affairs departments has released proposed standards for water offered for sale in sealed containers, prepackaged ice and water used in the manufacture of food.

The health department said in an information letter the proposals do not apply to mineral or spring water which is regulated under the Food and Drug Act.

— It must be disinfected by either pasteurization, chlorination, or ozonization.

— It must meet standards for coliform and aerobic bacteria levels.

"It is proposed that limits for radioactive contaminants be established, if necessary," the health department said.

Child's Clothes Budget Eased

Mrs. Pat Pollock today opened a unique store at 1700 Kings Road designed to help parents like herself who find outfitting children a heavy drain on the budget.

Mrs. Pollock, soon to become a single parent, says the store will provide furniture, toys and clothing for children up to the age of 12.

The items will be sold on consignment with the revenue being split evenly between her and the seller.

"It's designed to reach the low-income persons and the single parents who really can't afford too much," she explains.

Mrs. Pollock says she decided to open her store when she recently shopped for her 4½-year-old daughter Tara and found it cost $45 to buy some socks, underwear, two tops and a pair of shorts.

"That hurt. There's a real monopoly on children's clothig. They outgrow their clothing in three months," she complains." "You have to pay $18 tro $20 for children's shoes . . . that's a ridiculous price."

All clothing sold in the store will be either dry cleaned or washed and pressed by the seller and must be in good condition.

The store will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday to Saturday inclusive.

Stock for the new store is coming in gradually but Mrs. Pollock, who has 10 years managerial experience, is convinced the need will ensure success.

A favorite embroidered design on an old dress, worn pillow or whatever, is easily traced. Lay a smooth cloth on the ironing board. Dampen the embroidery and place it face down on the cloth. Cover it with a thin cloth and press firmly with a warm iron. When you lift the top cloth and embroidery, the design is impressed on the bottom cloth. Trace the outline with a pencil and you have your favorite design to stitch and keep for more years to come.

HE'S PROVED HE WASN'T TOO OLD

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ten years ago James B. Hardwick was turned down by the department of veterans' affairs when he requested the university education due him for his Second World War service.

The reason given? He was too old.

Hardwick graduated this spring from University of British Columbia with a BA, majoring in Slavonic studies.

He is 73, Russian-born, of English parents. He grew up in Riga in what now is the Latvian Soviet Republic, got his matriculation at a German school there and found, some years later, that his schooling, including commerce, law and agriculture, was the equivalent of first year university.

When he was 21 he left for England, worked at the Waldorf Hotel, took night courses in French and in April, 1929, came to Canada to join his brother in Alberta.

Hardwick was a 40-year-old married man with three children when he joined the Canadian Army in 1944. Two years later he was out, his marriage had foundered and he applied and was granted the veteran's right to a university education.

But before he could take advantage of it, he had met and married a widow with three children and it became evident that college would have to wait.

For the next 20 years he was busy breadwinning as a bookkeeper and accountant until, in 1967, a severe heart attack forced his retirement.

A year later he decided the time had come to catch up on the long-postponed university education. When the department of veterans' affairs turned down his application, he went on his own to college and graduated with a diploma in recreational leadership.

That whetted his appetite for more. During the summer he took advantage of the free non-credit courses made available to pensioners at UBC and in the fall he registered as a full-time student.

It was tough going but teachers and fellow students were more than helpful.

"It was a challenge all right," he said. "I had to study constantly. And I wasn't a world-beater—just average —but I never failed."

After graduation, Hardwick went off to take a three-week course in Moscow under the auspices of the National Institute of Physical Education and Sports.

Family Says Fiance Beneath Her Station

DEAR ABBY: I am a 35-year-old widow contemplating marriage to a widower. He is affectionate, trustworthy, and thoughful. He loves my children and they love him. He is a wonderful father to his own children. He cooks, cleans, washes, irons and never complains. We couldn't help but have smooth sailing, and I do love him, but my problem is the strong objections my family has to this man.

They don't like him because our backgrounds are so different. My parents are culture-conscious and somewhat snobbish. My friend is the eldest of 15 children of a struggling immigrant family. His English is not very good because he hasn't had the educational advantages I've had.

If left alone, I'm sure we could overcome these differences, but I am very close to my family, and they could make life unbearable for me if I were to marry this man. I've told him yes, but wonder if perhaps I should reverse my decision. Do you consider my parents' objection too great a stumbling block? UNDECIDED

DEAR UNDECIDED: Yes, because apparently you do. When you are able to say, "I intend to live my own life with a man of my choice, and if my parents don't like it, they can lump it," I'll reverse my answer.

DEAR ABBY: I don't know what I am writing to you for. My problem is money, and you can't help me unless you get big-hearted and send me a check for $50,000. I own my own business and make good money, but my wife spends it faster than I can make it. To make matters worse, I have four daughters who are exactly like their mother. I am drowning in bills every month, and there doesn't seem to be any end to it. Will you please tell my wife and daughters to quit being extravagant? — OWES PLENTY

DEAR OWES: No, that's YOUR JOB. It's bad enough to have spoiled your wife, but you are guilty of perpetuating the crime by raising four more females in her image. Turn off those charge accounts, Dad, and put your wife on an allownace.

DEAR ABBY: A girl I work with is getting married soon, and she wants to borrow my wedding gown and veil. She's not even a close friend, but she's seen pictures of my wedding and says that's exactly the kind of gown and veil she's always wanted. Unfortunnately, we're the same size, too.

Abby, I'm saving my wedding gown for my two younger sisters to wear — and someday I will have daughters who will want to wear it. So many of my friends have told me they let someone wear their wedding gowns and they were returned in terrible condition that I hate to take the chance.

What story can I tell this girl so I won't have to let her wear it? I hate to have her mad at me, as we work together every day. — SIZE TEN

DEAR TEN: Why make up a story½ Tell her the truth.

DEAR ABBY: One of the girls I work with is constantly talking about her sex life with her husband. (She's not a young kid, either.) Some of us are bored and others are embarrassed by her daily morning reports of what went on in her bedroom, but no one has the nerve to tell her.

We know she reads your column, so if you can't think of a better solution, how about running this letter? — THE OFFICE GANG.

DEAR GANG: If no one has the courage to speak up, you all deserve to be bored or embarrassed. I'll run your letter, not as a "solution" to your problem, but as a reminder that the meek are destined to put up with a lot.

CONFIDENTIAL TO R. IN ST. PAUL: You must be kidding! It is highly improper for Sue and her boyfriend and her boyfriend's mother to sleep in the same bed. I don't care WHO sleeps in the middle!

You must remember that thre is always a time lapse between the moment you see danger and the time you react. As speed increases, brakes take longer to do their work. Although fast speeds demand the greatest distance between cars, a slow speed also has definite spacing requirements. If at 60 mph you are closer than six car lengths, you are taking an unnecessary risk.

The booklet offers lots of advice on how to avoid getting trapped. For example, steer clear of clusters of cars as they will hem you in and cut off any possible escape route.

There are also tips on how to drive safely on expressways, how to merge, exit, brake and handle a tailgater. If you notice a tailgater who wants to overtake you while you are observing the speed limit, pull over when you can and let him pass. Let the police worry about catching him for speeding.

In addition, you will find a list of over a dozen situations when stopping takes longer than you would expect. It does, for instance, when the road is wet, when you go over the crest of a hill, when your tires are worn and when your view is limited.

Women's Lib Why Men Dress Badly

LONDON (UPI) — Women's liberation may be the reason why British men, once the dandies of Europe, are now dressing so badly, men's fashion experts say.

With women asserting their rights to equal opportunity, the experts suggest that men have started to sulk on a national scale.

They are dressing badly to draw attention to themselves and register their pique, rather as children behave badly to catch their mother's eye, say the experts.

Another possibility for their fall from sartorial grace, according to the Clothing Manufacturers' Federation, may be the rigid rules governing dress in Britain.

It referred to the "ridiculous incident" last summer when in the middle of a blistering heatwave, authorities at Wimbledon and Henley Regatta spent days agonizing over whether officials should be allowed to take off their jackets.

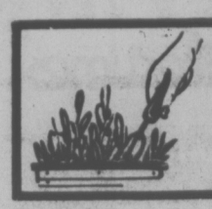
Make Some Watermelon Syrup

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS®



indoor gardens

By LYNN and JOEL RAPP

With the recent controversy about saccharin and the unpredictability of sugar prices, a lot of people have been looking for a good substitute sweetener. If that's your case, try using a sweetener made from the common, garden-type watermelon!

As novel as this may sound, people have been dabbling with the production of a sweetener from watermelons for over 100 years. However, the sheer economic clout of the conventional cane-sugar industry doomed all large-scale efforts to eventual failure.

This is not to say, though, that you can't make your own sugar from watermelons. Compared to honey gathering or bolting down maple syrup, the process is a breeze.

First, you need several juicy, fully ripe watermelons. Scrub the outside of each and slice the globes into inch-wide strips or cubes.

Some people prefer to cut and use the entire melon — rind and all — but you can simply spoon out the pulp. In either case, always be sure to hold the juicy pieces of melon over a bowl so you can catch every drop of liquid. You must also pick all the seeds out of the pink flesh.

The next step is to remove the bulk of the juice from the chunks of fruit. To do this, you can put the melon through a crank-type food grinder or mill, an electric blender or a vegetable juicer.

Once the melon has been thoroughly ground, pour the gooey mass directly into a colander and press the liquid through a strainer and into containers.

The final step is to boil your melon juice down to a thick, sweet syrup. Pour the strained liquid into a large porcelain-enamel container and place it over a burner set at about 220 degrees. If you have a stove without thermostatic controls, use a candy thermometer to help gauge and maintain the proper temperature.

As the juice boils, a froth will form on its surface. Skim this off frequently with a spoon or spatula and stir the concoction occasionally to keep it from sticking to the sides of the pan. When the brew appears reduced to about one-seventh of its original volume, taste it.

Remember, the longer you continue the evaporation process, the sweeter and darker the end result will be. In fact, you can cook the sap all the way down to a cake that tastes even better than maple candy.

At any rate, let your sweet tooth be your guide and continue boiling the thickened liquid until your taste buds tell you it's done. Then let the nectar cool for 24 hours and transfer it into bottles.

You will be happy with the results!

Keep Coldframes Safe in Summer

Coldframe covers, whether of glass or polythene film, seem to suffer more damage during the summer months than when in full-time use over winter.

The blame for this lies with ourselves for we usually lay them aside in late spring where they will be handy if needed and then forget to transfer them to a safer place for the summer.

The safest place for the one or two covers from a home garden frame is possibly the wall of a garage, the basement, or the garden tool shed.

The important point in storing coldframe covers is to prevent twisting. When this happens they will not fit closely to the frame when brought into use again in the fall.

While this twisting is especially noticeable on covers made from polythene film tightly stretched on a light wooden framework, it also happens to the heavier glass sash although to a lesser degree.

To prevent this distortion during storage the covers need to be held tightly against the studding of the wall. Some handymen attach blocks of wood to the studs the same thickness as the frame covers and use wooden turn-buttons to hold the covers in place.

Others simply use a projecting piece of one-by-two or two-by-two and driver nails through the wood and into the edges of the covers. Other ideas will be suggested by existing circumstances and conditions.

Never let the covers stand on a wooden or concrete floor because of dampness; always place them on two-by-four or four-by-four blocks.

Having a place prepared in a readily accessible spot we are more likely to put the cover into storage for the summer than leave them where damage is inevitable.

If the frame covers were not checked, repaired, and painted after the last time they were used in the spring, there is no better time than now to get this job done.

And if the frame itself is empty we have another checking job that can be done during the light evenings. Not only does this entail repairs, and painting, but also the removal of the old soil, attending to drainage if necessary, and the making of a new compost mixture ready for the late fall vegetables and overwinter crops.

After the old soil has been removed it often pays to spray the inside of the frame (the wooden parts) with a soap solution to which a little lysol or other disinfectant has been added. Many insects that inhabit an unused frame during summer can be routed with this simple mixture.

It is not unusual to find that the lower boards which are set partially into the ground have become rotted and that wood lice (billybuttons, sow bugs, or pill bugs are other names for wood lice) are there in great numbers turning the rotted wood back into soil. These boards should be replaced with well painted new lumber.

We often hear of home garden frames treated with a wood preservative suddenly collapsing. I had this trouble many years ago and wrote the manufacturer for an explanation.

I was told it happened because I had sealed in too much moisture and that it was specified on the label that no more than 14 per cent moisture in the lumber was permissible when the preservative is applied. How a gardener determines the moisture content of the wood he uses I never did find out.

In any case, the preservative seals in the moisture and dry rot sets in, and when the entire centre has rotted the treated outer shell still remains intact, but collapses if hit or subjected to heavy weight. After that experience I went back to paint and had no more difficulties.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room etc., for rent, or property for sale: start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your adveertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Saturday calls. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

Aspirin Seen as Heart Remedy

By DENNIS ESKOW

NEW YORK (AP) — A medicine that may be used to prevent heart attacks in the 1980s probably is sitting on a bathroom shelf in your home today. It is commonly called aspirin.

"Studies published to date are favorable toward aspirin, or unable to rule it out," says Dr. Stephen Scheidt of the Cornell University College of Medicine here.

Cornell conducts one of the 30 clinics around the United States involved in a $17-million federal trial of aspirin as a heart-attack preventative. A total of 4,500 patients are used in the trial.

The notion that aspirin has something to do with preventing heart attacks began to appear in medical literature about 20 years ago. But there was no laboratory work to back up the educated guesses of physicians.

"Part of the reason we were able to begin the aspirin trial with some confidence was that recent theoretical work seemed to be pointing to aspirin," says Dr. Marvin Segal of Mount Sinai Hospital in Minneapolis.

Research on heart attacks has led to a complex description of cause-and-effect. A chemical substance in the blood known as a thromboxane causes blood platelets to clump together, leading to blood clots which in turn contribute to heart attacks.

Aspirin helps block formation of the thromboxanes.

However, aspirin also helps block formation of another blood substance, a prostaglandin, which had already been found to balance out the thromboxane by breaking up platelets and preventing clots

The two discoveries have researchers wondering what role aspirin plays in the complicated process.

"Our aspirin trial is not interested in explaining why aspirin works," says Dr. William Friedewald of the sponsoring National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute. "We merely want to see if it works. The explanation will ultimately be provided by workers in the laboratory."

All the patients in the federal experiment have had heart attacks. They are divided into two groups: one that takes the equivalent of three aspirins each day and another that takes a placebo—a substance that doesn't do anything.

CHURCH ACCUSES GOV'T OF SPYING

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spokesmen for the Church of Scientology, following FBI raids on three church offices, accused the federal government Monday of "infiltrating our church."

At a news conference, they said at least one of the documents seized in the raids Friday proves alleged government infiltration.

The FBI has accused the church of infiltrating the government by arranging for church agents to land federal jobs and use those positions to steal government documents.

But the church spokesmen, Jeff Friedman, Hugh Wilhere and Ron Haugen said one of the items seized was a report from an "undercover agent" of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration "who had infiltrated our church in Washington, D.C., and pretended to be our parishioner in order to obtain information."

The FDA at that time was investigating whether the church was making fraudulent medical claims for the E-meter, a transistor-operated box which church members employ to measure skin reactions and identify past traumas.

The affidavit was based primarily on what former church member Michael Meisner told investigators about his role in supervising covert activities to infiltrate the justice department and Internal Revenue Service to gain confidential files for the church.

Friedman said the church will respond to the specific charges in a lawsuit to be filed against the FBI.

Lion Knifed

LUSAKA, Zambia (Reuter) — A Yugoslav technician killed a lion with his knife when the animal attacked him while he was changing a car tire, the Zambia Daily Mail said Sunday. The lion pounced on G. Wikuld in isolated bushland. Wikuld apparently sustained no serious injuries.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

An inexperienced player was partnered with the club expert during one round of the club's individual tournament (each player plays one round with each other as a partner). On the first deal he got the expert into a sound game contract, but the expert mishandled it and suffered a one-trick set.

"I'm sorry," the inexperienced player said. "It was my fault."

"Your fault?" the expert asked with surprise. "There were a dozen winning ways to play the contract, and I found the only one to get set."

"I know," replied the inexpert player. "I was trying to use telepathy on you — and you took the line of play I concentrated on."

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	2 ◇	Pass
2 ♡	Pass	3 ♡	Pass
3 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Four of ♠.

Today's deal, which came up in a top-level game, serves as an illustration of "telepathy at work." However, in this case the receiver did not get the message. As a result, declarer fulfilled a contract that could have been defeated.

Dummy's king of spades captured the opening lead. A low diamond was then played, declarer inserting his eight-spot after East had followed with the deuce. West won this trick with the jack. He now led the nine of clubs, which was taken by East's king.

East went into a huddle, pondering over whether to play back a spade or a club. As East kept huddling, West kept repeating to himself: "Play back a club! Play back a club!"

East finally made his decision — he played back a spade. West won with the ace, but all the defenders could make from here in was West's ace of clubs. And so declarer fulfilled his contract.

After the deal had ended, West pointed out that he had made a mistake, and that it was his fault that declarer had fulfilled the contract. West's "mistake" is not an easy one to spot. Here is the way he put it:

"When I won the diamond jack, I should have cashed the spade ace before leading the club nine. My partner would then have known that a spade return would be futile; and he would have played a club automatically."

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Wednesday, July 13

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Reports, telephone calls, messages from relatives could lead to plans for a journey, vacation, long-range project. Aries, Libra figure prominently — so does the number "9." You end on phase of activity — and you start a new cycle.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Let go of losing situation. New approach is necessary to recoup loss. Know it and act accordingly. Desire requires legal agreement before it is fulfilled. If single, your marital status is spotlighted. Married or single the question of rights, permission is paramount.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Agreement can be reached with one in position of authority. Key is to follow through on bunch, to apply lessons learned in recent past. You could be shaken up by behavior of friend who does something very unorthodox. Live and let live!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Highlight sociability — and be flexible. Friend with "weight problem" sings the blues. Be lenient, display sense of humor — but do not become inextricably involved in ridiculous situation. Yes, these are r u m o r s, reports, gossip. You'll have answers only after closed-door meeting.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): What appears a serious disagreement could be only superficial, a "lover's quarrel." Be aware of details — dig deep for basic material. Accent on emotions, children, change, variety, ability to communicate through "creative process." Yes, you will comprehend!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Study Leo message for valid hint. Open lines of communication. Develop your style. Originate rather than imitate; one you admire is going to give you a helping hand. Accent on advancement, promotion, added prestige. Gemini, Sagittarius figure prominently — so does the number "5".

Three Socred MLAs Broke Law For Taking Money—Macdonald

Three Social Credit MLAs, two of them cabinet ministers, are no longer eligible to sit in the legislature, former attorney-general Alex Macdonald (NDP — Vancouver East) said Monday.

Macdonald called on Attorney-General Garde Gardom to take action against Recreation Minister Sam Bawlf, Agriculture Minister Jim Hewitt and George Kerster (Coquitlam), after Housing Minister Hugh Curtis told the legislature some of their expenses had been paid by the government.

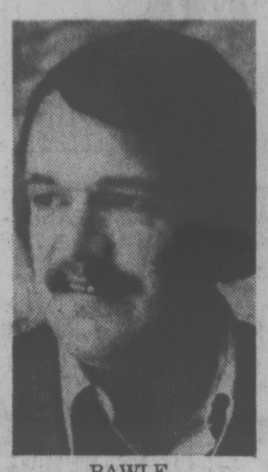
The opposition said this is contrary to the Constitution Act while Curtis said the payments were legal.

The MLAs were members of a committee set up last year to investigate roadblocks in the delivery of housing in B.C.

Curtis tabled in the legislature documents which show the government paid $1,881.82 to cover expenses of the three MLAs, including a direct payment of $107.58 to Hewitt.

Accompanying the expense sheet was a memorandum from deputy housing minister Larry Bell to an assistant deputy minister instructing that "no expenses related directly to the MLAs on this committee are to be passed for payment from departmental funds."

"It is the intention of the government to seek alternate sources in order to compensate the MLAs for these expenses."



BAWLF

HEWITT

KERSTER

Macdonald said the documents confirm that the three received expense funds contrary to the Constitution Act and they now are ineligible to sit as MLAs.

He noted Curtis expressed regret and "further intimated that while the expenses were paid by his department, they should not have been, and had not been repaid by any of the three members concerned."

"That the minister seeks repayment or reimbursement from some alternate source is a clear admission that the payments were not lawfully made within provisions of the Constitution Act," Macdonald said.

Most of the payments were for travel or hotel accommodation. Expenses paid on behalf of Bawlf, who was chairman of the special committee, totalled $546.77, Kerster, $514.51, and Hewitt, $820.54.

Curtis said the Constitution Act authorized expenses for boards and commissions but it was his policy that the government not pay the expenses of MLAs to discourage using MLAs unnecessarily for government tasks to supplement their incomes.

He noted his office failed to bill the MLAs for their expenses.

"You can appreciate my dismay to find that the spirit of this intent had not only failed to be carried out, but that I was responsible for that failure," he said in accepting "full blame and responsibility."

"I apologize to them for any embarrassment the incident may have caused. No blame should be attached to any MLA. The fact that their expenses should not be paid was a political decision."

Curtis told Conservative leader Scott Wallace he had two or three options where to find funds to pay the expenses, including a Social Credit caucus fund or telling them there would be no assistance.

Curtis also promised to table transcripts of the hearings held by the Bawlf committee into housing but there would be a delay until members of his staff had contacted all those promised confidentaility to inform them of his decision.

Outside the legislature, Bawlf and Kerster indicated they are considering billing the government for their out-of-pocket expenses incurred while working on the committee.

Kerster said accommodation had been reserved on a block basis and he is still at least $70 out of pocket.

"What was I going to do, sleep in the car? The only thing I am guilty of is sleeping — but not on the job."

Bawlf said he had not been aware of the provision in the Constitution Act.

"But now that the matter has been raised, I am considering requesting reimbursement of my other expenses — and that's several hundred bucks."

He said the documents tabled in the house were the first accounting of expenses he had seen "not prepared by me."

"I am just an innocent bystander. I went out to do a job. I paid for meals, transportation and at least one hotel bill."

Carter Gives Nod To Neutron Bomb

WASHINGTON (UPI)— President Carter told Congress today he supports production of the neutron bomb that kills people by atomic radiation without the heat and blast that destroys property.

The announcement foreshadowed a debate in Congress over funds for the new warheads, now buried in the 1978 public works appropriations bill. Today's Washington Post said the amount was classified, but could reach $650 million.

"The President will send a direct appeal to Congress," said White House Press Secretary Jody Powell.

He added that the President reserved the fight to change his mind.

Carter spoke with the congressional leadership early today.

Speaker Thomas O'Neill said, "the President indicated again that he had no knowledge it was before the Congress" until news reports said the research funds were in the public works appropriation bill.

"He said he would like it passed so he could study the issue at greater length," said O'Neill.

Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd predicted that Carter's endorsement would help supporters win approval for the weapon. "I hope that it will clear the air, shorten the debate," he said.

Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., leading the fight against funds for production of the bomb, claimed new information that it is not "clean" as touted by its supporters.

Hatfield said several scientists — whom he did not identify—told him a neutron explosion splits a radioactive carbon atom, and as a result, the neutron bomb leaves a "deadly radioactive cloud."

But House GOP leader John Rhodes said the neutron warhead, to be used on the Lance surface-to-surface missile and artillery shells, is "a creditable deterrent against aggressive attack in . . . Europe."

POWER CURB ASKED ON HOME APPLIANCES

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. government is asking makers of 10 power-hungry home appliances to voluntarily reduce the energy consumption of the products by as much as three-fourths by 1980.

The most dramatic reduction proposed Monday by the Federal Energy Administration — 79 per cent — is for television sets. Other appliances range from refrigerators to ovens.

The government wants the efficiency of clothes dryers improved by 11 per cent, the lowest efficiency improvement target of the affected appliances.

An FEA spokesman says additional targets will be set later for furnaces; central air conditioners, humidifiers and dehumidifiers.

Administration officials consider voluntary targets; required under the 1975 Energy Policy and Conservation Act, to be a temporary measure pending passage of President Carter's request for mandatory standards for the most energy-hungry appliances.

The FEA, the National Bureau of Standards and industry officials worked together to produce the voluntary targets, described as the best performance considered technologically and economically possible.

Hijackers Sleep Then Surrender

HELSINKI (AP) — Two Soviet skyjackers surrendered to Finnish authorities early today, ending the second hijacking of a Soviet airliner to Scandinavia in 6½ weeks. Finnish officials said the pair will be turned over to the Soviet Union as soon as possible.

The pair surrendered after their remaining hostages fled the plane. The escape came when the hijackers fell asleep.

Authorities identified them as Alexander Zabirniak, 19, and Gennady Seluzhkd, 22. They commandeered a twin-jet Aeroflot Tupolev 134 Sunday night on a flight over northern Russia between Petrozavodsk and Leningrad.

Interior Minister Eino Uusitalo told an air port news conference Finland has received an extradition request from the Soviet government.

Finnish officials said the men will be returned to the Soviet Union in accordance with a 1974 anti-hijacking treaty between the two countries. The Soviet Union is the only nation having such a treaty with Finland.

In the Soviet Union they face prison terms of three to 15 years.

An official Finnish communique said the first hijacker gave himself up three hours after the last three hostages managed to escape from the plane early today. He was followed within one-half hour by the other hijacker, it said.

Officials said the hijackers had been armed with one hand grenade that preliminary investigation indicated contained no explosives. During negotiations the two said they were armed with several hand grenades, the communique said.

There was no word on other possible weapons. Earlier an airport spokesman said no weapons were carried by the hijackers when they walked out of the plane and surrendered, about 36 hours after seizing the jetliner.

Hoax Brings Call Flood To Spicer

OTTAWA (CP) — The office of Keith Spicer, commissioner of official languages, has been inundated by telephone calls seeking information about a hoax advertisement in a New York newspaper Sunday.

The ad in the New York Times sought applicants for a "two-year French course in Quebec, Canada" to train teachers for "a 10-year make-America-French program."

Students enrolled in the course would be paid $15,000 a year and $24,000 and up once they began teaching French to Americans.

The ads said 400-500 teachers were needed for the program and invited applicants to apply to Spicer's office in Ottawa.

"We are inundated by calls from people wanting to apply," said an official in Spicer's office.

When we tell them it's a hoax, a lot of them are saying 'I thought it was too good to be true.'"

The official said the Canadian embassy in Washington has notified government missions in 15 American cities to check if the ads had appeared there.

Spicer's office received a list of ad rates from the Washington Post and an Organization called the Hawaii News Agency.

Jobless Lineups Lengthen in B.C.

Wage, Job Ties a Myth

OTTAWA (CP) — The Economic Council of Canada released a study today that says there is no evidence to support the commonly held notion that wage increases can be held down by allowing unemployment rates to rise.

Governments have been ill-advised to assume there is a simple trade-off between unemployment and inflation, the study says. This theory generally holds that stimulating economic activity accelerates inflation, and conversely that stable prices take a cost in higher unemployment.

This idea has come under pressure in recent years, the study notes, because both the number of jobless and the inflation rate have been rising together.

The authors, J. C. R. Rowley and D. A. Wilton, find that the role of unemployment in determining wage rises has been distorted in previous research.

Too often, studies have assumed that wage rates are negotiated annually, whereas in fact unions and management often prefer to lock in pay increments over a period of years, frequently including high initial increases, they report.

OTTAWA (CP) — British Columbia's unemployment rate rose by one-half of one per cent in June to 8.3 per cent, Statistics Canada reported today.

There were 93,000 workers without jobs in B.C. last month, compared to 89,000 in May.

In Victoria the unemployment rate in June rose to 8.6 per cent from 8.2 per cent.

The unemployment level in Vancouver rose to 7.3 per cent from 6.4 per cent.

Statistics Canada said the actual unemployment rate for the country as a whole was 7.5 per cent last month, compared to 6.6 per cent in June, 1976, and 7.7 per cent in May.

The number of unemployed in the country dropped in June, for the second consecutive month, to a total of 814,000.

The seasonally adjusteed jobless rate was eight per cent in June, up from 7.9 per cent in May.

B.C., New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Newfoundland — with 15.7 per cent out of work — had significantly higher unemployment rates among the provinces.

Statistics Canada included in its survey student unemployment figures. For students planning to return to school in the fall, the jobless rate was 14 per cent.

Worst hit are students who do not plan to return and who are entering the work force. Their rate is 17.3 per cent.

Later, Finance Minister Donald Macdonald said he was concerned at the latest job figures.

The downward trend in the unemployment rate that the government had hoped for after May had not continued, he said, and the government will have to take a hard look at the economy after the House of Commons rises later this month.

In Toronto Robert Andras, treasury board president, said today that the federal government will spend public funds to create jobs if the private sector does not do so through expansions.

"I remain convinced that the best way to create jobs is through the private sector, but if there is no response then it is pretty difficult for government to stand aloof," Andras told the advisory council of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

Andras said response from business to government urging for expansion have not been satisfactory.

Andras related the unemployment problem to the issue of national unity.

"Sustained, chronic high unemployment is very hard and a danger to social stability," he said.

"The next 12 to 18 months could be pretty dicey, particularly on the unemployment side, which unquestionably exacerbates our critical unity problem.

Ottawa Policeman Killed In Bloody Gun Battle

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Police charged a 22-year-old man with one count of murder and nine counts of attempted murder today following a bloody gun battle which saw a police officer killed Monday night.

Frederick Koepke was ordered to undergo a psychiatric examination before appearing in court for arraignment.

Police said today that Constable David Kirkwood, 22, was fatally shot as he approached a residence at Bronson and Gladstone Avenues to deliver a summons for assault.

Constable Terry Lynch was with Kirkwood. He was not injured. Eight other policemen and a civilian were wounded in a three-hour siege and gun battle watched by hundreds of spectators.

Kirkwood is believed to have died from the blast of a 12-guage shotgun which hit him in the throat and chest. It was fired through the door of the house.

Inspector Lester Thompson, in charge of the criminal investigation division, denied reports that some people in the crowd taunted police as they lobbed tear gas into the house.

He told a news conference this morning that there were scattered cheers when the tear gas canisters were fired.

Police said they seized five firearms in the house, including a 12-guage pump action shotgun and a .22-calibre rifle. Police said both weapons were used during the shootout.

Also seized were other heavier calibre rifles, police said.

"Now you see what I mean about gun-control legislation," said the minister who has been attempting to get tougher gun-control laws through Parliament.

Controls Countdown Discussed

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Donald Macdonald said today that he and two cabinet colleagues will meet during the next four days with provincial governments in a final set of talks about ending wage and price controls.

A decision about the method and date to start lifting controls will be announced during the last week of July or the first week of August, he said.

Macdonald said he is meeting this week with representatives of the Ontario, Alberta and British Columbia governments. Robert Andras, treasury board president, will meet the Manitoba and Saskatchewan governments, and Allan MacEachen, privy council president will meet the Atlantic provinces.

They will be talking about a monitoring agency for the period after mandatory controls end, a consultative group to represent all interest groups, and public service compensation, he indicated.

The government wants to assure that pay rates for public servants do not become targets for other groups after controls end.

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

Socred George Kerster (Coquitlam) said Monday he was only doing his job as an MLA when he intervened to have several claims paid last year by the Insurance Corp of B.C. after they had earlier been denied.

One of the claims involved a personal friend and another involved Kerster's former car dealership, Surrey Dodge.

In another dispute in the legislature Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver East) said Monday that three Social Credit MLAs, two of them cabinet ministers, are no longer eligible to sit in the house because they took government expense money. See story on Page 32.

The situation came to light through a Vancouver newspaper story which detailed two separate sets of cases in which Kerster was involved.

The first involved three claims made by Leslie Wood a constituent of Kerster's. They were originally denied by ICBC because there was a suspicion of fraud.

After a visit by Kerster to the office of ICBC general manager Norman Bortnick, the claims were paid out. The company which financed the car involved in the claims and which held a lein on it, was First Charter Financial Corp. of New Westminister, headed by manager Bill Butler, described by Kerster as a personal friend.

The second claim involved a claim by Surrey Dodge which was also paid after Kerster's visit to Bortnick. Kerster was president of the company in June, 1975, at the time of the theft of a dealership car, but was not connected with it when the claim was filed in March, 1976.

The claim was apparently not filed until almost eight months after the incident because of a strike by ICBC employees.

Kerster, after being informed of lengthy delays in both cases, on Aug. 23, 1976 went to see Bortnick.

Postal Sleuths Somehow Manage

To Deliver Letters Addressed Like This:

Smith, McKenzie, Victoria

By AB KENT
Times Staff

When Susy Smith received a postcard from a school chum holidaying in Acapulco she was amazed—not because her friend was in Mexico but because it would take a psychic to deliver anything with so skimpy an address.

The card was sent to:

Smith
McKenzie . . .
Victoria, B.C. . . .

There was no annotative information as is often found on poorly-addressed letters, stamped or handwritten by a postal worker to improve the chances of delivery.

To begin with there were no initials or first name to help identify the addresses in a city of more than 1,000 Smiths; there was no street number; no indication whether street or avenue; no country of destination; no postal code, and no return address.

But even for an innocuous greeting card, the post office takes pains to deliver.

A perceptive Mexican postal worker first of all got Susy's card into the Canada bag, having recognized the abbreviation for British Columbia which we take for granted.

Getting it to Victoria was no trouble after that, but when it came up on the sorting table for breaking out according to district, the sorter had to choose between the area in Saanich running west of the university, or the South Fairfield area in Victoria, or else send it to the directory department.

In the latter it was sure to be held up at least a day and cause someone extra work in pinpointing the home of the intended Smith.

But the sorter opted to try for McKenzie Ave., in Saanich, being 10 times the length of McKenzie St., in Victoria, and thus with the chance of more Smiths living on it.

The postcard was fired out to Postal Station A where one of the letter carriers for McKenzie Ave. received it, realized he had no Smiths on his walk, and passed it over to a colleague with the adjoining walk.

That man had three Smith residences to cover, so when he walked his route that day he asked who had friends holidaying in Acapulco. Sure enough—Susy was one of them, and recognized her chum's scrawl.

If the sorter had sent the card to South Fairfield first, the carrier on two-blocks-long McKenzie St. would have dealt with it the same way, and not finding the right Smith would have sent the postcard along to Station A with the annotation. "Try McKenzie Ave."

The illustration is fictitious, but similar situations occur many times daily in post offices everywhere.

And it casts a human light on a postal service that is becoming more impersonal with mechanization of mail handling systems.

The mailman, postie, postman or mail carrier — male and female—epitomize what public relations man Buz Sawyer calls "a people service."

There are just over 250 mail carriers in Greater Victoria, responsible for carrying letters, papers, magazines, small parcels and junk mail to some 85,000 addresses including capital area rural routes.

That some mail ever gets to its destination is a wonder. And that literally tons of other items never do get delivered is soon appreciated in a visit to the Victoria mail processing plant's directory section at Royal Oak.

In the past week, for instance, the section received bundles of the Vancouver-based Western Living magazine, mailed to this area in bulk and not one of them with an address label.

There was a letter addressed simply: Victoria, British Columbia, Canada.

One of the four full-time directory employees opened the envelope in hopes of finding either the name of the sender or the addressee. Inside was an application for basic income rent assistance, but no name or address. Impossible to deliver.

Another letter bore the initials D. O. C., with the only address, Government St., Victoria, B.C.

A third envelope had only a kind of block letter doodle representing M-14 and the name Bill.

This, too, was opened and found to contain a Victoria Times bill and cheque for $300, which the directory addressed properly and returned to the mail stream.

The day we visited there was three-week-old mail waiting to be tackled, but the sleuths had been too busy to work it over, leaning heavily on phone books, city directory and instinct.

"It's an unproductive job, looking up dead mail," said Doug Anderson, acting area manager.

"We have a lot of problems," added Roy Davis, supervisor in charge of the directory section. "People can't write; we can't read. It's a slow, time-consuming job."

Whenever a qualified person can be sprung from the letter-sorting area he may be sent to help the directory section wade through the seemingly hopeless piles of poorly-addressed mail in all shapes and sizes, some with outdated addresses, some without any address.

A lot of the problems stem from mail-order promotions like film-processing, book clubs and Arizona real estate which use so-called sucker lists of potential buyers or subscribers purchased from a dealer who, in turn, may have obtained the names from motor-vehicle registrations.

The directory section also inherits items that fall out of parcels from which no wrapping is ever found.

They have wallets, birth certificates, social security cards, sunglasses, enough keys to stock a hotel, an automobile rear axle, a piece of machine steel, a film cartridge and a prescription of pills for some unknown who will never swallow them.

"Somebody will spend hours, maybe days trying to find just the right gift and maybe spend a lot of money, then go home, wrap it in tissue paper, throw it in the mail and wonder why it never gets delivered," Anderson marvelled.

Anderson recalls the time 50 $1 bills turned up in an envelope bearing only a girl's name and the note: "Thanks for services rendered."

Widespread use of postal codes will help change a lot of this, postal offficials hope. A letter with a name and postal code, but no other information, can be delivered anywhere in Canada as long as the person is known in his block, apartment or office building.

But even with the traditional system of addressing, astonishing as it may seem, 75 per cent of mis-addressed first-class mail gets through, with a much lower percentage for third-class material.

Anything left over eventually is sent to the B.C.-Yukon undeliverable mail office in Vancouver where it is held for ultimate destruction or, if merchandise, public auction.

Acting retail and delivery manager Al Bennett, who at one time had walked every route in the city, recalls an experience that could have hurt but for a small and resourceful lady in Esquimalt.

He had a registered letter for her neighbor and without thinking tossed it through the letter slot in his front door before realizing the man was away on extended vacation. Bennett either had to produce the letter or the addressee's signature when he returned to the post office. The house was locked up tight.

He mentioned his dilemma to the lady next door, who said she would solve it for him, and forthwith crawled through a rear window to get the letter back.

Bennett didn't ask how she knew the window would open.

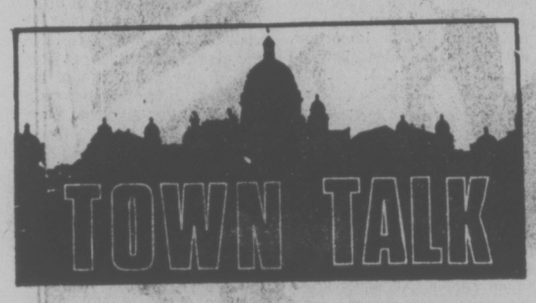
Roy Davis and the result of inadequate addresses



The price to pay for filling out a reader interest poll card for Maclean's magazine appears to be about five cents an issue.

A Victoria subscriber, who moved recently, received two cards in the mail this week, one addressed to the old address and one to the new one.

The new address envelope said the reader's name had been chosen to serve on a panel to study reader interests. Poll cards were included as well as another saying as a co-operating panel member the reader is entitled to 22 more issues of Macleans for $8.

That works out to about 36 cents an issue, five cents more than the "best ever offer" contained in the second envelope sent to the old address.

The best offer for 32 issues, including two bonus issues, was $9.98, about 31 cents an issue.

However, the 36-cent offer also includes a "magnificent map of Canada" so maybe it is worth co-operating after all.

Oak Bay has joined the Provincial Emergency Program's marine rescue service and will have a 15-foot inflatable speedboat based in the municipality to respond to distress in offshore waters.

"The Royal Oak Bay Navy," remarked Mayor Brian Smith when the program was outlined to council Monday.

The craft will be trailer-mounted and will be available for training a dozen volunteers and remain on indefinite loan to Oak Bay, with all expenses covered by the provincial government.

Volunteer boat-owners may also be trained to respond to emergencies when required.

The June edition of Oregon's magazine Portland has a special appeal for Victorian seawatchers.

The Esquimalt-based destroyer HMCS Gatineau, commanded by Cmrdr. L. G. Temple, is pictured in a feature on the Portland Rose Festival. If the cover of the magazine looks familiar . . . it should. It's a picture of the boats that took part in the 1976 Victoria-Maui sailing classic racing under spinnaker in the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

The picture was taken by Robert Frisbee, a crew member on board the Portland boat Celebration, which placed fifth in the race and was back in Victoria again this year to sail in the Swiftsure classic.

John LeHuquet, 23, a graduate of St. Michael's School and Oak Bay High School, has won an Eric Hamber award worth $750. Awards went to the top two students in the 80-member third-year meds class at UBC.

That spectacularly beautiful scene curtain that everyone is talking about — and everyone including the Times reviewer thought was devised from aluminum foil — has surely given Tim a life-long complex about scissors, for it cost him agonizing hours, painful blisters and cramped fingers.

The curtain, which came close to upstaging everything else, is made of hundreds of feet of Mylar, a plastic material impregnated with reflective metal.

As assistant to his set-designing brother, Anton, Tim spent endless hours on a ladder, scissors in hand, cutting each of those strips on the 30-foot wide curtain from the stage floor to the fly gallery, a distance of 25 feet.

Stanley Burke, the former CBC national news man, and Ralph Vipond, a former Victoria resident, have just added a third newspaper to their growing partnership.

They started with the Powell River Progress and added the Juan de Fuca News not long ago. Now they've bought the Nanaimo Times, a twice weekly in the hub city.

"For some reason of which I have no knowledge whatever release may have been given to 'the press' on the occasion referred to in the accompanying notes seems to have been lost sight of."

With that introduction, Harold J. Now Victorians can toss their round garbage into square containers.

The switch to the four-sided litter bins from the circular variety is being made for a variety of reasons, one of them being to prevent drunks from rolling them down the street.

City engineer John Sansom said the old plastic ones were also frequently burned, something that won't happen with the new reinforced concrete bins with metal liners and lids.

The square bins, which cost about $200 each, are gradually replacing the old ones and the plan calls for 50 of them at downtown locations this year.

WOMAN'S BODY FOUND IN BUSH

The woman was found at 6 p.m. by a passer-by, off a beaten trail about 70 yards from a house on Atkins Road and about two miles from her home at 2787 Jacklin. The woman left her home May 25.

Colwood RCMP Staff-Sgt. Ted Foster said foul play is not suspected.

He said it appeared Mrs. Zarft walked into the bush, lay down and went to sleep. Her clothing was undisturbed and she had her coat tucked around her.

An autopsy is being carried out today to determine the cause of death.

Townhouse Plan Dropped After Residents Protest

Instead, the lands, planning and housing committee which consists of all council members decided to call a public hearing to have the 271 acres zoned for single-family homes.

At the suggestion of Ald. Mary Casilio, the minimum size lots will be 7,200 square feet.

Monday's decision means abandonment of a plan for the area which has been worked on for two years and which council earlier endorsed in principle.

The plan for the 271 acres would have seen 443 acres remain as open space. Of the remainder, 24.5 acres would have been for townhouse development at the rate of 10 units to the acre and the rest, single-family homes.

Mayor Ed Lum and aldermen warned the residents however, that single family zoning, if approved after the public hearing is held in August, does not preclude future councils from increasing the density allowed in that area.

Ald. David Paterson, while voting for the single-family zoning, said he would make sure that a larger sewer capacity is allowed.

He pointed out the mix of townhouses and single-family homes, as recommended by the planning department, would have created 43 acres of open space while only 24½ acres would have been used for townhouses.

Bourque also warned that the provincial government is prepared to assist with the heavy costs of servicing but would require some multiple development.

Ald. Ian Cass, seconding Casilio's motion to zone the acreage for single-family homes, said there is a need for smaller homes on smaller lots.

"I've seen the situation go from bad to worse in the short time I've been on council," he said. "We're saying that everyone that isn't wealthy and can't afford a 2,000 foot home on an 8,000 foot lot must live in rental accommodation. We're barring them from owning a home. I don't think it's right."

Many of the residents who attended the meeting were at a public hearing in April when a bid to have the area zoned for single-family homes was defeated because of their opposition. After that public hearing they organized a 202-signature petition opposing the zoning of townhouses and single-family homes.

Spokesmen Monday said although they would rather see the area remain rural, the majority of residents will not oppose single-family homes.

Council also recommended that Richard Fatt, president of Fatt's Poultry Farm Ltd. which operates on eight acres in north Quadra, have his property placed in the Agricultural Land Reserve.

Aldermen said they will support his application to the Capital Regional District.

Committee chairman Fred Severson assured Fatt that council will do all it can to ensure the farm remains in operation.

Fatt said he tried to buy a 150-foot strip on one side of his property for a buffer strip but the price asked was exorbitant. He asked the aldermen's help him in his eforts to get such a strip.

They're Fighting Mad About Lagoon Outfall

A groundswell of opposition is building to the issuance by the Pollution Control Branch of a permit to the Capital Region District for a 1,200-foot sewage outfall off Esquimalt Lagoon.

Branch director W. N. Venables said Monday the permit was granted because sewage problems at a nearby subdivision are causing a serious pollution and health hazard.

But opponents refer to the decision as "absolutely ridiculous" and an "overreaction to a minor problem."

The Albert Head Ratepayers Association, as well as environmental and concerned citizens groups are preparing another assault on the government in hopes of reversing the decision.

Meanwhile, a pollution branch spokesman said today those opposed to the branch's decision can appeal to the Pollution Control Board within 15 days.

There was no public hearing, the spokesman said, because it was decided there was a definite health hazard and such action was necessary.

The battle has raged for nearly a year, ever since the CRB decided last September to solve a problem of sewage leaking from a 76-lot subdivision by pumping it through an outfall into the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

A permit was sought from the PCB but the first application was withdrawn and a new one submitted in December after objectors presented an 8,000-name petition opposing the scheme.

Another 8,000-name petition was submitted opposing the second application and nothing was heard until Monday.

Shirely Wilde, secretary of the Albert Head Ratepayers Association, sees the whole thing as a political decision designed to lock residents into the region's plans for an Albert Head outfall to serve Langford and Colwood.

She said there are only 18 houses in the problem area which are having sewage difficulties and, she added, they should have the responsibility of correcting their own disposal systems.

She questioned why there was never any public hearing, adding that now all environmental groups on Vancouver Island will join the fight against the project.

"The residents are going to have to decide whether they want fish or feces in the Strait of Juan de Fuca," she said.

Oak Bay Helps Academy Move

Oak Bay will assist — to the tune of about $20,000 — to help the Victoria Riding Academy quit its 9.3-acre site on Cedar Hill Cross Road by Oct. 15.

Mayor Brian Smith said Monday the municipally-owned property adjoining Uplands Golf Club will be open for anything from high quality single family dwellings to low density apartment-condominium or recreational use.

"There is no chance of high-rises," he stressed following Oak Bay council meeting.

Smith said the future of the site — a subject of controversy in the past 15 years — will be decided in consultation with professional planners. The property is zoned for apartment use.

He said the property will be used in some way to help defray the mounting cost of running the municipality, particularly in recreation.

The cost assistance to Mr. and Mrs. Donald Carley to help them relocate elsewhere in the Greater Victoria area will cost Oak Bay about $20,000.

Some may argue that this amount is over-generous for a private club, Smith said, but not in the light of the Carley's contribution to recreation in the community.

"The Carleys will be missed in the municipality and we are aware young riders will find it more difficult. But the site is no longer suitable for a riding academy," Smith said.

The property was assessed as a going concern and taxes have risen to $9,000 a year, which is beyond the ability of the Carleys to pay year after year after year, the mayor said.

Council is prepared to forgive all 1977 taxes and because the academy will not be used for business after Oct. 15, there will be no taxes due in 1978, he said.

Rent also will be forgiven from Oct. 15 even though the Carleys may not complete their move until early in 1978.

For the move itself, council is willing to spend up to $5,000 in services or manpower, the mayor said.

Forgiving current taxes will mean $9,000 less in tax collections to the municipality and in addition, Oak Bay will have to pay the property's share of school taxes.

Smith said rent forgiveness is worth about $1,100 and the loss of taxes for the first quarter of 1978 will represent about $2,300.

Smith said some buildings may be dismantled and relocated, with others demolished or converted to municipal use. The removal will be completed by March 31.
